

Bush fights drug 'super state'

New empire boasts economic, political and military powers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A troubling challenge facing President Bush as he gropes for ways to combat drug smuggling is the emergence of a drug "superstate" in Latin America, an entity with many of the trappings of a nation state.

The drug "superstate" — a term once used by a Colombian attorney general shortly before he was murdered by drug traffickers last year — has a defense establishment, controls large swaths of territory, issues communiques, and even boasts what amounts to a "commerce department," which assiduously promotes the export of cocaine and other illicit drugs.

It also has what its defenders regard as a progressive political philosophy.

Diego Cordoba, a lawyer employed by Colombian drug barons, contended in an interview with a Brazilian newspaper last year that drug trafficking has done more to alleviate poverty and hunger in Latin America than any government in the region.

Another lawyer for the traffickers, Mario Arango, wrote in a best-selling book that the drug business has opened new opportunities for the underprivileged classes.

"The money from the drug traffic has acted as a brake on the social and political deterioration of the country," Arango says.

According to U.S. government figures, as much as $1.7 billion in cocaine-generated revenues last year bolstered the economies of Peru and Bolivia, the two largest cocaine producers in the world. The figure for Colombia, the conduit for 80 percent of the cocaine consumed in the United States and Europe, is estimated at $4 billion.

The super state boasts a formidable defense establishment. While the underfunded Colombian police have about 30 helicopters at their disposal, one single trafficker, Jorge Luis Ochoa, reportedly has 50 aircraft and an arsenal of weapons.

Unlike the Colombian government, which requires months and sometimes years to acquire weaponry for its military, the drug traffickers — unhindered by red tape — can get what they want in days or even hours.

Another characteristic of a nation state the drug lords possess is the ability to declare war. After Colombian President Virgilio Barco ordered a crackdown on the drug traffickers two weeks ago — confiscating millions of dollars worth of property and arresting 11,000 suspects — the cartel issued a statement asserting the existence of a state of "absolute and total war" with the government.

If the drug superstate has a capital, it is, of course, Medellin, a city located about 150 miles northwest of Bogota.

Medellin is described as the "central star" of a "sprawling, fluctuating constellation" by Douglas Payne, director of hemispheric studies for the pro-democracy research organization Freedom House.

The superstate has numerous branch offices, including one in Panama where a key ally, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, from time to time has welcomed Colombian drug kingpins in need of a safe haven.

Heritage, memories fireside topic

By JEREMY J. JUDSON

Our heritage is magnificent and our responsibility tremendous, President Gordon B. Hinckley, a counselor in the First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, told a near-capacity crowd at the semester's first 17-Stake Fireside.

President Hinckley, who has served 20 years in the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, used the Sunday fireside in the Marriott Center to reminisce and reflect on personal experiences and progress within the LDS Church during the summer.

The greatest things that happened this summer were the four dedication services performed, said President Hinckley, who has performed the highest number of temple dedications of all the General Authorities.

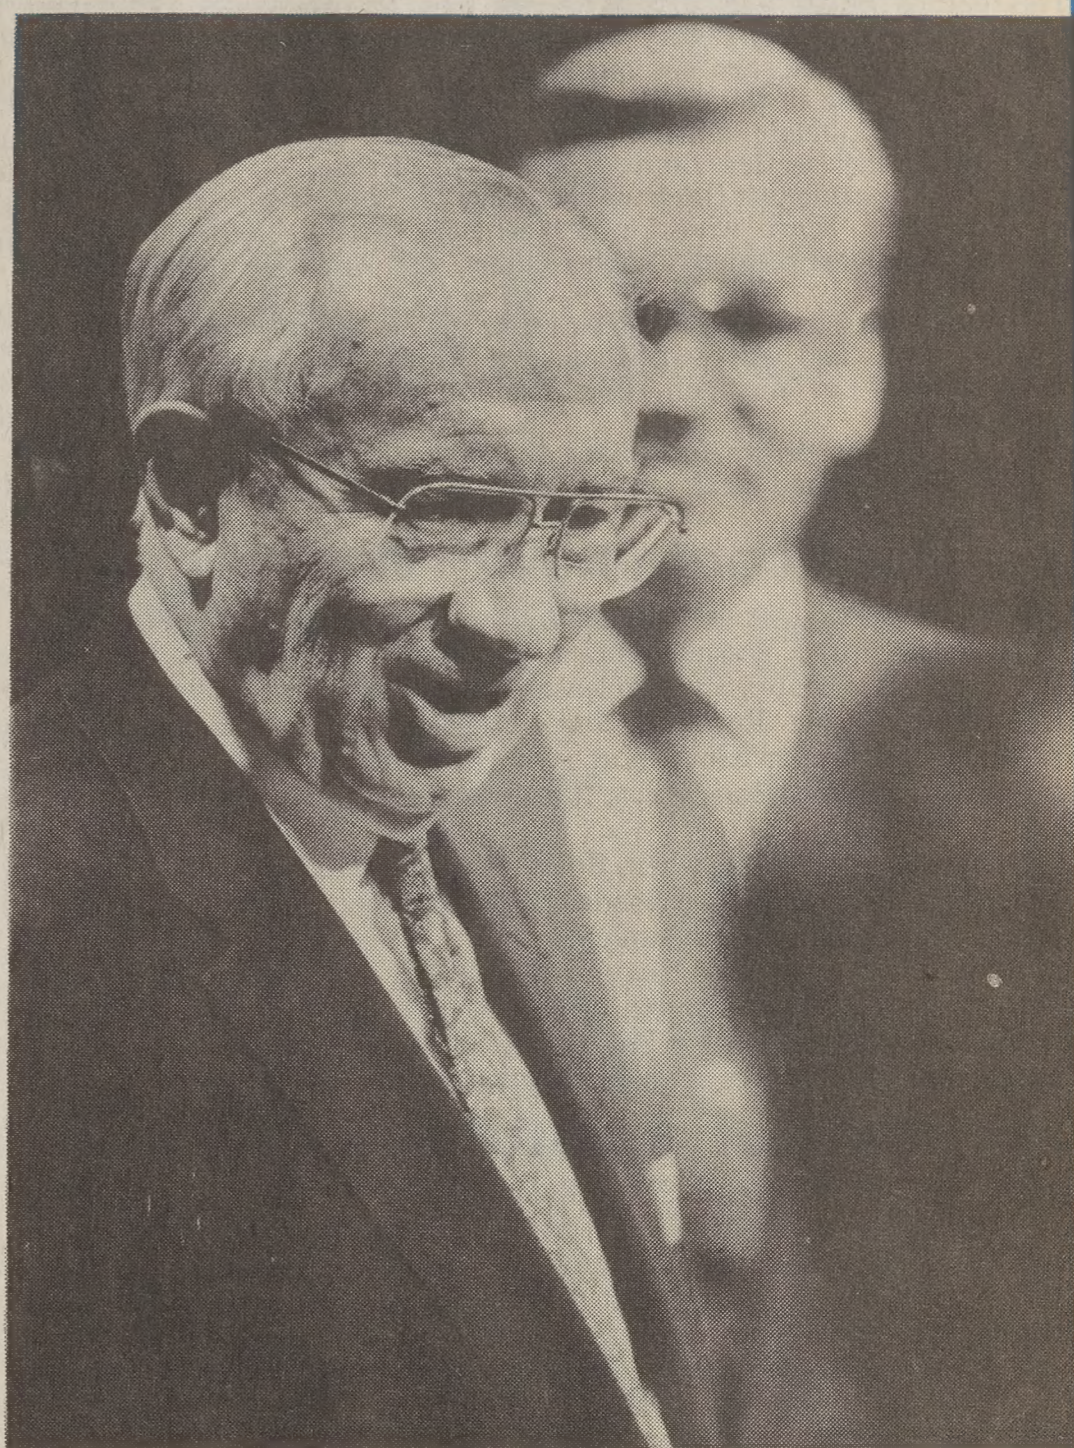

The first of the summer's dedications took place June 27 in Carthage, Ill., the scene of Hyrum and Joseph Smith's martyrdom. A statue of Hyrum and Joseph was erected and an enlarged visitor center was constructed.

"The scene of a terrible tragedy has become a fitting memorial to the lives of two special servants of God who there sealed their testimonies with their blood," said President Hinckley.

The second dedication took place in July at Ensign Peak in Salt Lake City where Brigham Young and his associates had climbed just days after their arrival in the valley.

"This temple was erected and dedicated as a reminder to all that from the very beginnings of these communities in the valleys of the west there was felt an incumbent responsibility to carry the gospel message to the nations of the earth," said President Hinckley of the dedication of the Portland Temple.

land, Ore., was the site of a dedication on Aug. 19. Approximately 41,000 people attended the dedication which lasted for three days.

The fourth dedication took place in a small Hawaiian settlement called Iosepa which is located in Skull Valley, some 75 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

The Aug. 28 dedication was in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the day when about 50 Hawaiian saints came to build a colony paradise in the desert so they could partake of the ordinances of the Church.

President Hinckley also discussed three events that happened over the summer that were important to him. These included the anniversary of the landing on the moon, the fascinating pictures Voyager sent us from Neptune and the discovery of a gene that could be a cure for Cystic Fibrosis, a serious respiratory illness.

Fund created at freshman's funeral

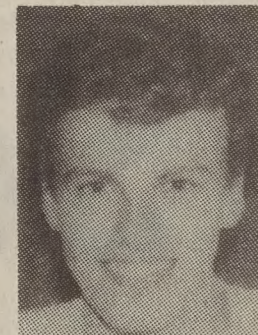

By ALISA Y. KIM
Campus Editor

A fund dedicated for the male, BYU freshman who died last Thursday has been formed, using the money he saved for an education and a mission.

This was announced at the funeral service for Christian Daniel Felsted, 17, from Great Falls, Va., who died of cardiac arrhythmia during a freshman barbeque activity at the Deseret Towers field. Cardiac arrhythmia is an uneven heartbeat caused by an imbalance of body fluids.

Contributions and the $8,000 which Christian saved by delivering newspapers and pizzas will be used for two purposes: supporting another young man to go on a mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and helping a person receive an education.

C.D. FELSTED

Those interested in adding to the fund can mail donations to the following address: Great Falls Ward, in care of Bishop John Merrill, 1905 Clarks Glen Pl., Vienna, Va., 22182.

BYU President Rex E. Lee and son, Mike, family members, relatives and friends attended the service Monday afternoon in Provo.

"What does this all mean for us?" President Lee said. For Christian, he enters into the final phase of life. For us in the mortal existence, we should have a greater appreciation and take advantage of life's opportunities, President Lee said.

The two families moved to McLean, Va., in 1975 and met in the same ward.

Christian collapsed during a volleyball game in which a six-foot ball was used. The incident occurred around 7:40 p.m., said witness Tom Colwell.

Cuban jet explodes after takeoff

Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — A Cuban jetliner bound for Italy exploded shortly after takeoff and crashed, showering flaming debris on a Havana suburb, officials and news reports said. Only one survivor was reported among 126 people aboard.

The crash of the Soviet-made plane during a thunderstorm Sunday evening also injured 63 people on the ground, damaged 20 homes and snapped power lines, blacking out an area around the airport, news agencies said.

In Rome, a Foreign Ministry employee said one man, believed to be Italian, survived the crash but was hospitalized in critical condition.

Officials had said earlier that all aboard were killed.

The chartered Cubana de Aviacion jetliner was carrying 113 Italians, two Cubans and a crew of 11, said the Cuban ambassador to Rome, Javier Ardizones.

Italian television showed footage of emergency workers rushing through the wreckage carrying bodies on stretchers. Firefighters aimed streams of water at the charred shell of the plane.

Nearby were the smoldering hulks of two trucks apparently hit by the plane. Youths in T-shirts stood at the door of a one-story house whose roof appeared damaged by the nearby plane. Flames leaped from a pile of rubble.

Soldiers in green uniforms surrounded the plane, helping rescue workers sort through the wreckage.

Prensa Latina, Cuba's official news agency monitored in Mexico City, said the plane exploded shortly after takeoff.

The dispatch said officials did not elaborate on the cause of the accident but that Gen. Rogelio Acevedo, Cuba's civil aviation chief, named a commission to investigate the crash.

Mexico's Excelsior news agency said there was a heavy downpour with thunder and lightning when Flight 9046 took off for Milan, Italy, with a scheduled refueling stop in Cologne, West Germany.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the four-engine Ilyushin 62 crashed a half mile from the runway and 20 houses were damaged.

Cuba's state-run television interrupted its regular programming to show the plane engulfed in flames, Excelsior reported, adding that the area around Havana's Jose Marti airport was plunged into darkness for a time when the falling wreckage snapped power lines.

Cuban authorities had not released a passenger list or disclosed any identities of victims by early Monday morning. The Mexican news agency Notimex quoted Havana's Radio Reloj as saying 63 people on the ground were hospitalized.

Middle Slide Fire rages out of control

By PAT BIRKEDAH and
JIM RAYBURN
Universe Staff Writers

Despite regulations prohibiting fires along the Wasatch Front, two juveniles ignited a fire about 1:30 p.m. Saturday that quickly grew into a blaze which will be suppressed at an estimated cost of $200,000.

The Middle Slide Fire has consumed 624 acres of scrub oak, grass and conifers in the Uinta National Forest on the steep slopes east of Mapleton. An airtanker, three helicopters and 291 people have been mobilized to fight the blaze.

Loyal Clark, information officer for the Uinta National Forest, said the optimistic estimate for containment of the fire within the hand-dug fire lines was late Monday. No estimate has been made for when the fire will be "under control"—the term for a fire that has been completely extinguished.

News reports that two juveniles were arrested for starting the fire are incorrect, said Clark. A press release issued late Monday said the Interagency Fire Investigation Team "is actively and aggressively pursuing the investigation into the cause of the fire. According to Bret Barney, Mapleton Chief of Police and team member, two male youths have been questioned regarding the man-caused fire."

Norm Huntsman, Uinta National Forest fire information officer, said Saturday he heard the fire was started by two boys sending smoke signals to their father down in Mapleton to let him know they had reached the ridge.

"Do you think their father can see their smoke signal now?" asked Robert Palfreyman as he watched the flames Saturday from his ranch at the base of Maple Mountain.

On Saturday, the flames soared more than 100 feet into the air, forcing firefighters to stand by and watch until the flames died down, said Huntsman. Smoke could be seen from most of Utah County Saturday afternoon.

Fire Behavior Officer Stephen B. Smith said the fire moved at a rate of 120 feet per minute in elevations between 5,800 and 9,500 feet. Vaughn Stokes, forest engineer with the Uinta National Forest, said firefighters spent three hours hiking to the top of the mountain where they had hoped to contain the blaze, only to learn that there were spot fires on the other side. By Sunday, crews had put out all the fires on the other (east) side, said Stokes.

Clark said there have been three injuries in the fire, but they have all been minor. She said they have been very fortunate not to have had more injuries because of the rough terrain. Rolling rocks, wind and snakes have all made the firefighting particularly hazardous.

Clark said a plane flew over the burned-out Middle Slide area. The infrared photographs did not reveal any heat in the area at all, meaning the fire burned all the fuel and nothing was left smoldering.

The firecamp is in Mapleton City Park. The Mapleton Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has volunteered to provide meals for the firefighters.

"Do you think their father can see their smoke signal now?" asked Robert Palfreyman as he watched the flames Saturday from his ranch at the base of Maple Mountain.

A fire started by juveniles has burned 624 acres of vegetation near Mapleton. The fire, which at times has traveled 120 feet per minute, is still burning out of control, and there is no estimate for when it will be completely controlled. Only three minor injuries have been reported.

Pope, Lamm argue effect of PM10

By PAT BIRKEDAH
Senior Reporter

Two studies of respiratory illness in Utah County have yielded very different results, with both researchers refuting the validity of the other's findings.

Geneva Steel hired a consultant from Washington D.C. to address a study by BYU economics professor C. Arden Pope that had demonstrated a possible link between respiratory illness in Utah County and pollution from Geneva Steel.

Steven H. Lamm, president of Consultants in Epidemiology and Occupational Health, Inc., spoke at a Geneva Steel press briefing Friday to report his findings. Later Friday, the Utah Clean Air Coalition met to comment on Lamm's study.

Samuel R. Rushforth, botany professor at BYU and member of the Utah Clean Air Coalition, said at Friday's meeting of the coalition that he had thought the coalition had an agreement with Geneva Steel to cooperate on studies about air quality.

Pope said, "This whole issue has pretty much caught me by surprise." He said he had only seen a 20-minute presentation on Lamm's findings and he had not seen the supporting data.

"To call it a study is a misnomer," said Pope, "(Lamm) is a hired consultant of Geneva Steel."

Lamm said the correlation Pope found between hospitalizations and PM10 pollution was a "historic accident."

Pope's study, "Respiratory Disease Associated with Community Air Pollution and a Steel Mill, Utah Valley," was published in the May issue of the American Journal of Public Health. Pope reported increased hospital admissions for respiratory illness with increased levels of PM10 pollution during the winters of 1985-86 and 1987-88. The winter of 1986-87 the Steel Mill was closed.

PM10 pollution refers to airborne particulates that have a diameter of 10 micrometers or less, or about one tenth the size of a human hair. The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed a PM10 standard because studies have shown a connection between PM10 pollution and human health.

Lamm said the "bottom line" of his own research was that the major contributing factor in increased hospitalizations in Utah and Salt Lake Counties was a virus and not increased levels of pollution.

Epidemics of bronchitis and pneumonia during winter months caused by the respiratory syncytial virus, or RSV, was the cause of increased hospitalizations, according to Lamm.

"It's clear that the variance in respiratory hospital admissions in both Utah and Salt Lake Counties can be explained by epidemic episodes of RSV, not particulate emissions," he said.

NYC candidates debate racial issues

NEW YORK — The slaying of a black teen-ager by a gang of whites has brought racial tensions to the surface in New York's mayoral campaign, dividing the two leading Democrats — one black, one white.

The Aug. 23 death of 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins ended months in which the issue of race was rarely raised.

"This touches the exposed nerve of the city," said Richard Wade, a graduate professor of urban history at City College. "It politicizes the racial question. All other issues suddenly are less important."

Hawkins' shooting in the mainly white Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn recalled the 1986 killing of a black man chased to his death by whites in the city's Howard Beach section. Both cases sparked outrage.

But this killing came just three weeks before the Sept. 12 primary in which Mayor Edward I. Koch, whose critics call him racially insensitive, faces Manhattan Borough President David Dinkins, who would be the city's first black mayor.

"The Koch voters and the Dinkins voters have very different perceptions of where the city is and where it is going. This will tend to magnify those differences," said Lee Miringoff, director of the Marist College Institute for Public Opinion.

Koch already has drawn fire under the spotlight: while he decried the killing, he also criticized black protest marches held in Bensonhurst, saying they raised tensions.

Iran claims contact with Washington

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A senior Iranian official said Monday his government had been in touch with Washington and that Western hostages in Lebanon could be freed if the United States releases Iranian assets frozen 10 years ago.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Ali Mohammad Besharati, deputy foreign minister, as saying President Bush had sent several letters, the latest three weeks ago, to "the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran."

In Kennebunkport, Maine, where Bush has been vacationing, White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk responded: "There has been no message sent by the president to the Iranian leadership."

Besharati said the hostages "may be released" if the United States turns loose the billions of dollars worth of assets, including military hardware, frozen after the storming of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

Sixteen Western hostages are held in Lebanon and eight are Americans.

Utah board of regents is mostly LDS

SALT LAKE CITY — Gov. Norm Bangerter's appointments to the State Board of Regents are mostly lobbyists, Republican campaign staffers and businessmen who contributed to the governor's election campaigns.

The composition of the board that governs higher education in Utah concerns some who feel it does not reflect the state's population, while others criticize the tradition of reserving a seat on the board for a Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints general authority.

"Reserving a seat for a Mormon leader is unfair. It's also a blatant example of the fact there is no separation of church and state in Utah," said the Rev. Richard Reese, president of Shared Ministry of Utah, an organization of five Protestant denominations.

All regents except one are Latter-day Saints, and the entire board is white. Three are women, including a student who serves one year, rather than the full six-year term.

The seats for the student and the Latter-day Saint general authority are reserved.

Troops use force on Durban protesters

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police opened fire Monday on a crowd of protesters who defied a ban on rallies and gathered at a Durban university, and 10 people were reported injured in a stampede that followed, witnesses said.

A police official warned that the escalating series of protests keyed to Wednesday's parliamentary elections, in which blacks are excluded from either seeking office or voting, would be dealt with "mercilessly."

About 2,500 students at the multiracial University of Natal later defied a police ban on the meeting and gathered to protest the elections.

Police arrested 18 protesters after firing on the crowd with tear gas and bullets, witnesses said, speaking on condition they not be identified.

In a similar rally at the nearby University of Durban-Westville, eight people were arrested when police swinging batons dispersed 500 students at an illegal demonstration.

Police had no immediate comment on either of the protests.

E. Germany delays exodus of refugees

BUDAPEST, Hungary — East Germany has delayed the mass exodus of its citizens to the West from Hungary, a Hungarian official was quoted as saying Monday.

Interior Minister Istvan Horvath indicated it might even be weeks before the thousands of East Germans are allowed to leave Hungary in the unique emigration opportunity. About 5,000 East Germans are huddled in emergency camps in Hungary awaiting safe passage to West Germany. Bonn and Communist Hungary agreed on a plan in which the East Germans would be allowed to emigrate to the West, and Red Cross officials overseeing the camps said the exodus may take place this week.

But Horvath, interviewed in the Hamburg weekly Stern, was quoted as saying East and West Germany must reach agreement in the refugee crisis, and that this could take "perhaps a month, or one and a half."

A well-placed Hungarian official, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press his government is reluctant to authorize the mass transport to West Germany until it can placate its angry allies in East Berlin.

Coast city's curfew lifted as riots end

Associated Press

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — The curfew issued when a Labor Day weekend gathering of students turned violent was lifted Monday morning.

National Guardsmen with rifles helped enforce an overnight curfew after a second night of violence followed the looting of more than 100 stores by young people in town for a fraternity festival.

Officials in the town of 250,000 praised police, but a civil rights leader said officers contributed to the tension that touched off the riot involving students from mostly black colleges.

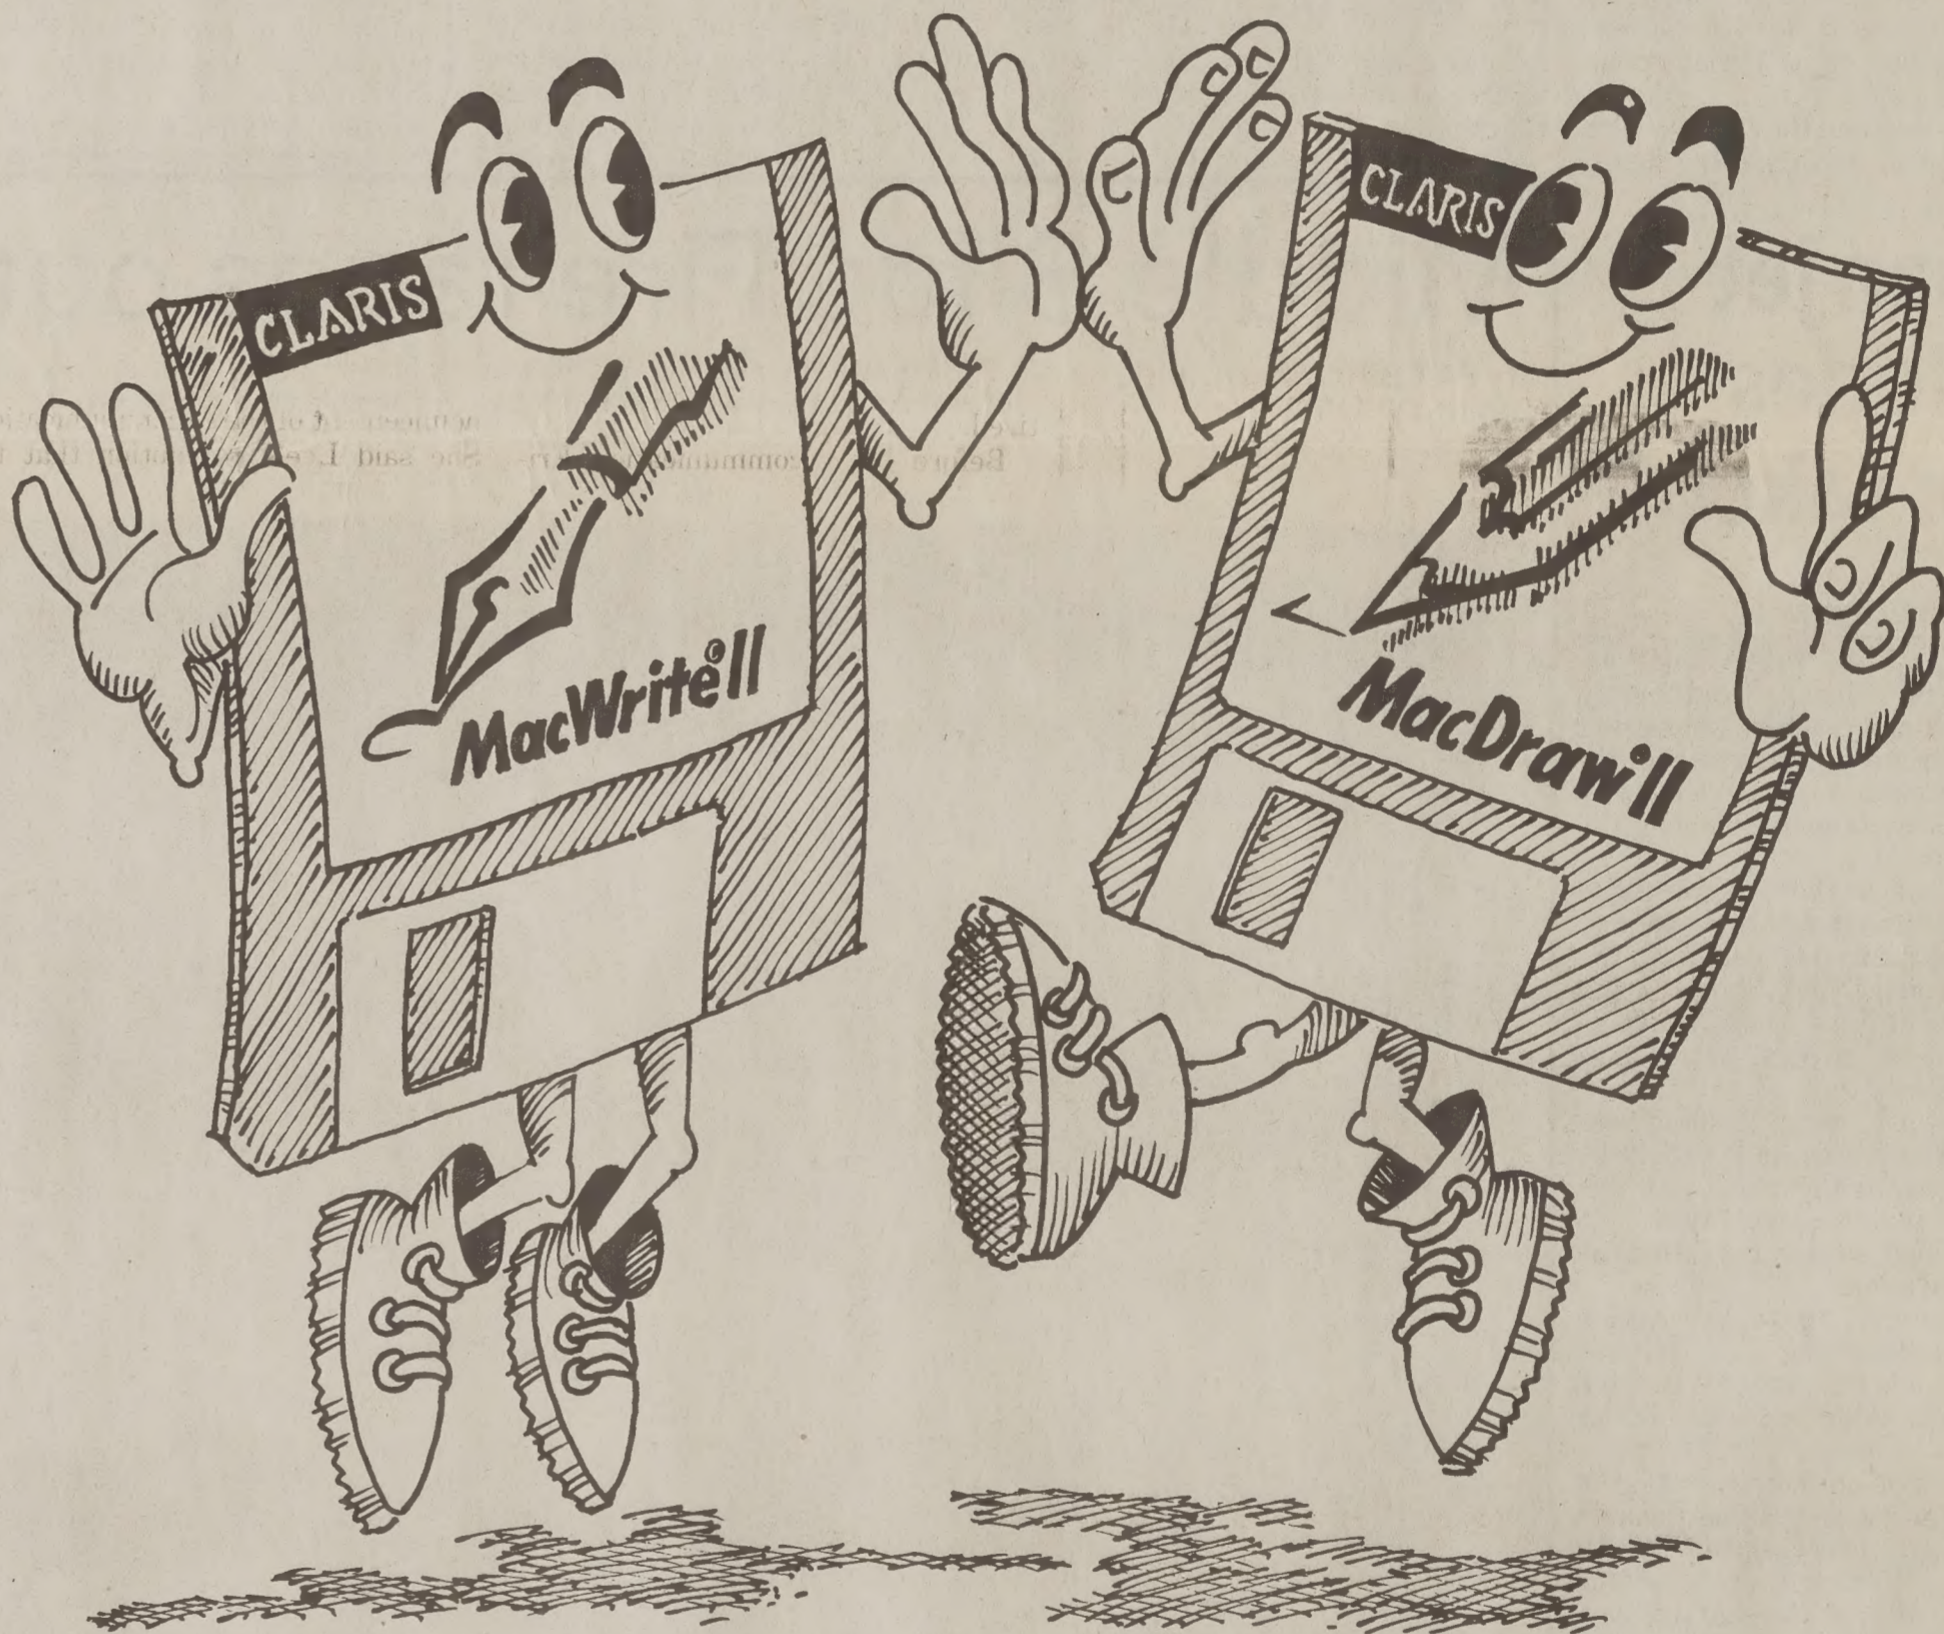

A 35-minute sweep by club-wielding officers late Sunday added dozens of arrests to the 160 arrests made and 395 citations issued between Friday evening and Sunday afternoon.

"Last year, everything was real nice. There was no violence ... but this year the place was jammed with police and they were hassling people," said Paul Williams, a 21-year-old student from Philadelphia's Temple University.

If you plan on writing, presenting, publishing, drawing or designing, MacWrite® II and MacDraw® II software from Claris is the hottest and wildest combination available for your Mac.

MacWrite II is the hottest word processor around with footnotes or endnotes, a lightning-fast 100,000-word spelling checker, a 220,000-synonym thesaurus, multiple columns, headers and footers.

It also has word counting so you don't go one word over on that 1,000-word paper that's due first thing in the morning. And for those foreign language studies, optional international spelling dictionaries make your assignments a little less foreign.

Now let's talk wild. MacDraw II is outrageous. You can use it with virtually any course you're taking. Make overhead slides for a class presentation, or create structural drawings or architectural designs for those engineering or interior design classes— even newsletters and flyers for student-body sponsored events.

It's easy but precise. Zoom in to 3200%, rotate objects in .1° increments, measure down to millimeters, even "do dimensioning."

Put hot and wild together and things get really exciting. You can insert your MacDraw II drawings into MacWrite II. And even reduce, enlarge and crop them once they're there.

Your campus has worked out a special deal for you. It won't last forever. Get hot. Get wild. Get MacWrite II and MacDraw II now. They're on sale.

Construction will last two more weeks

JIM RAYBURN
Editor

West-side traffic to the BYU campus will be slowed for the next two weeks by the University Avenue construction project, and Utah Department of Transportation officials are asking students to take a different route.

Kevin Beckstrom, UDOT public information officer, said construction on the project is currently between 800 North and 1280 North. The biggest effect the construction has on campus traffic is the campus access on 800 North.

Students will have to use a few alternate routes to get to school," Beckstrom said.

Beckstrom said construction will affect traffic along 900 East and North Canyon Road. For those who would normally use the 1230 North intersection, Beckstrom recommends turning east at 800 North and going south on University Parkway.

The students will have to decide which way will be best for them," Beckstrom said.

The road by Provo High School and Evans Bank will be completed by Sept. 5, said Beckstrom. UDOT officials are working overtime so the North Canyon Road intersection will be open by BYU's first home football game Thursday night, he said.

"Our crews want to have this thing done as soon as they can because they want to go to the game themselves," Beckstrom said.

The intersection at 1230 North is scheduled to be open by Sept. 13, Beckstrom said. The entire project, from 800 North to 1280 North, is scheduled to be completed by Sept. 20.

"The excavation is all done. It's just a matter of putting things back together again," Beckstrom said.

The University Avenue construction project involves removing the existing road surface, replacing water and sewer lines, installing synchronized traffic signals and replacing curbs and gutters. The road is then surfaced with concrete and sealed.

The new road will have a 50-year life expectancy, Beckstrom said.

"The road will have much less maintenance and will last longer than asphalt," he said.

The project began in April and was scheduled to extend to 800 North. But because the project moved along more quickly than Construction continues at the intersection of University Avenue and 1230 North. To get to the intersection is scheduled to be open to traffic by Sept. 13.

UDOT officials expected, it was extended to 1280 North.

"As long as we had the time, the money and the momentum, we figured we might as well keep going," Beckstrom said.

Katie Hurley, UDOT community relations intern, said Provo businesses have been very cooperative with the construction project. Most businesses have reported only a slight decrease in sales, and some businesses are reporting an increase in business, Hurley said.

A public relations campaign launched by Provo merchants and UDOT officials before the construction started, called "Explore Provo," is one reason the project has gone so smoothly, Hurley said.

A light-hearted cartoon strip created by Beckstrom, which will run this week in The Universe, encourages people to explore different routes and be careful around the construction.

Excommunication of general authorities is rare today, but wasn't in the 1800s

By DOUG GIBSON
Senior Reporter

Although excommunication of a general authority is considered a rare occurrence, it was at one time a more frequent event.

George P. Lee, a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, was excommunicated Friday morning for apostasy. He was the first general authority excommunicated since Apostle Richard R. Lyman lost his membership in 1943.

But early Church figures—including Oliver Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon, William Law, Thomas Marsh, William E. M'Leellin and the Prophet Joseph Smith's own brother William Smith—were among many general authorities excommunicated in the early years of the LDS Church. Cowdery and Marsh were eventually rebaptized.

Before his excommunication Friday, Lee, a Navajo Indian, handed a 23-page, handwritten letter to LDS Church leaders that accused them of racism and denial of Native Americans' deserved place in the religion's teachings.

The Book of Mormon, Another Testament of Jesus Christ, teaches that Native Americans are descendants of Lehi.

Lee said the Book of Mormon clearly teaches that only Indians and Jews are literal descendants of Israel and all others are "gentiles" or "adopted Israel."

Lee said general authorities in recent years have taught that non-Indian members are literal descendants of Ephraim, a grandson of Israel in the Old Testament.

Lee claims that this doctrine displaces "the true seed of Israel" and gives non-Indian Mormons an excuse to ignore their Indian brothers and sisters.

The former general authority also is critical of LDS Church leaders for what he claims are the dismantling of LDS programs to help Indians since the death of former LDS President Spencer W. Kimball in 1985.

"You are slowly causing a silent subtle scriptural and spiritual slaughter of the Indians and other Lamanites. While physical extermination may have been one of (the) federal government's policies long ago ... your current scriptural and spiritual extermination ... is the greater sin and great shall be your condemnation for this."

"This kind of teaching encourages an attitude of superior race, white supremacy, racist attitude, pride, arrogance, love of power and no sense of obligation to the poor, needy and afflicted," wrote Lee.

LDS Church leaders have declined to comment on Lee's charges since announcing his excommunication in a one-paragraph press release. LDS leaders did reaffirm their love for the Native American people in an announcement Friday.

The excommunication is a shock to many LDS members, not only because of the rarity of such an event but also because Lee was considered a LDS Church "success story."

"Lee is a product of the LDS placement system," said LDS author Linda Sillitoe. "He's really its superstar."

Sillitoe said traditional Navajos have trouble adjusting to the competitive world of the white man. She said they are taught not to make direct eye contact and are reticent and non-competitive. "(Lee) obviously is a rarity to have climbed that high ... And he's done all that. I'm amazed at the fervor in which he embraced Mormonism," said Sillitoe.

She is disappointed at the announcement of the excommunication. She said Lee's perception that the LDS Church is ignoring the needs of its poor and minorities is understandable as a result of his cultural background.

Laura Mason, a junior from Tacoma, Wash., majoring in marriage counseling, said, "I saw it as an indication that the last days are coming. It says that the very elect can be deceived. It makes me think that we have to be as strong as a rock to withstand temptation. If (Lee) succumbed, so could anyone."

BYU chemistry Professor Delbert Eatough, a bishop in a campus ward, believes that while the situation is regrettable, it shouldn't cause problems with members. "If a student is disturbed by this, he or she needs to evaluate their own testimony and work to put it in line," he said.

"It seems a tragedy for all concerned," said BYU English Professor Eugene England. "I would hope that any member of the Church would have confidence that the brethren, in accordance with the new bishop's manual, have acted with extreme care and compassion and that they have done the best that they could do. I would also hope that nobody would judge Elder Lee. That is not our responsibility."

Ivy Tower allowed to reopen

By C.Q. PETERSEN
Senior Reporter

After being closed down for almost a week, the Ivy Tower Dance Club has been permitted to reopen.

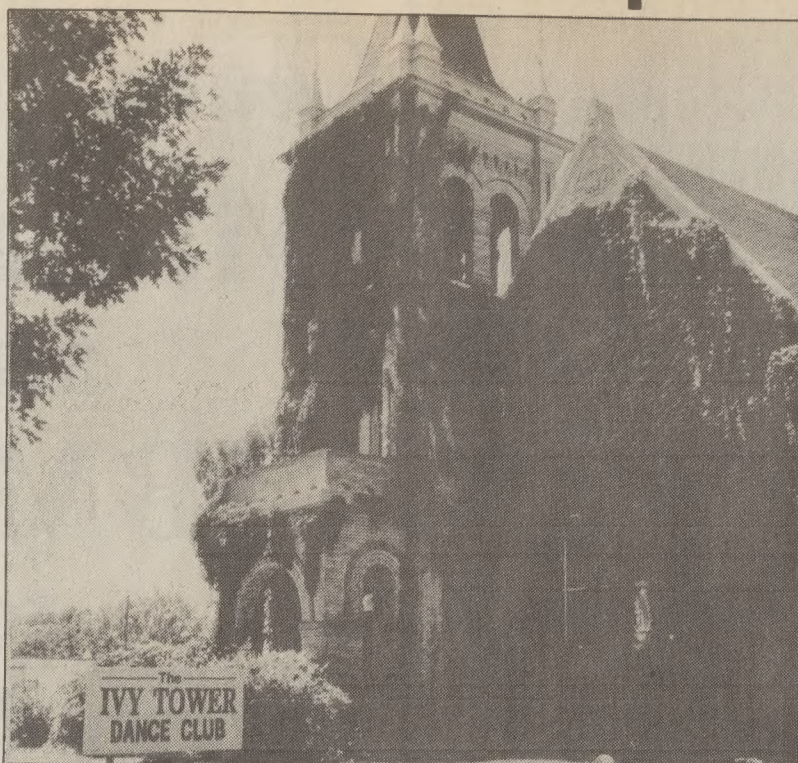

Scott Rosenberg, manager of the Ivy Tower, said the dance hall was closed because of suspected noise and alcohol violations.

"Someone thought alcohol was being served," Rosenberg said, adding that the allegation was untrue.

Another reason for the dance hall's closure was that excessive noise in the parking lot had been reported, he said.

The club's business license was suspended by a Provo City administrative hearing officer, but Mayor Joe Jenkins postponed the officer's order for 90 days and made changes to the conditional-use permit, allowing the club to reopen Aug. 25. The Provo City Planning Commission approved the mayor's proposed changes.

The changes require the Ivy Tower to employ three uniformed off-duty policemen to patrol the parking lot and check IDs, allow no alcohol in the building or in the parking lot, limit occupancy to 800, and make sure that no one associated with the building violates federal, state or municipal laws or ordinances.

Awareness is a solution to child abuse

By JOHN MANTELL
Universe Staff Writer

Reported incidents of child abuse in Utah County increased 18 percent in 1988.

Lynn Jacobsen, protection service supervisor for the Division of Family Services, said a 10 percent to 15 percent increase in child abuse cases is common. Most of the cases reported involve physical abuse, sexual abuse and neglect, he said.

"We need to stop this type of abuse increase, especially in our state," Jacobsen said.

Margy Ullman, secretary for the Utah County Child Abuse Council, said the community needs to become aware of the child abuse problem.

"If we can prevent (abuse) and educate our children at the elementary school level, then child abuse will hopefully decrease," Ullman said.

Jacobsen said only about half of the cases reported are eventually substantiated.

However, he still recommends people report any suspected child abuse incident.

Jeanette Reihle, an intake social worker at DFS, said child abuse exists in all societies. It is no worse in Utah County than it is anywhere else in Utah. Overall, Utah's percentage of child abuse cases is less than national percentages, she said.

Jacobsen said the family is the best place to fight child abuse. A strong family unit can resist the outside forces that cause child abuse, he said. "Some say the way to bring child abuse cases down is to have stiffer penalties and more laws. But I believe the solution is in the family."

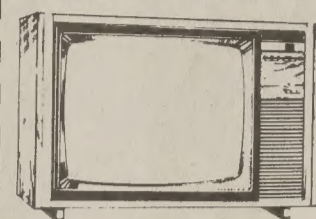

There exists in Utah a private fund called the Children's Trust Fund to help children who need child abuse counseling. "In this fund, there is between $20,000 and $30,000, which the state can use to match the funds which we raise," said Jacobsen.

Ducks evicted from pond due to increase, messy habits

BY K. STEWART
Instant Campus Editor

The ducks that have been in the BYU Botany Pond since summer were evicted last day because of their messy habits and because the pond had grown from six members to 13.

People have been complaining about the mess the ducks are making, said Roy Peterman, grounds manager. "They (ducks) aren't necessary and are taking them to the BYU."

Peterman said the ducks have been causing problems by eating the flowers and the special rotation which the Botany, Zoology and Horticulture majors need to study.

Other ducks have also been stirring up the pond and making it difficult for the Botany students to do experiments, said Tom Black, Botany and Range Science greenhouse manager.

"They weren't too messy when they one who had some ducks and who wanted to get rid of them had put ducks in there."

The ducks' refuse is high in nitrogen, which causes the water plants and algae to grow rapidly. These plants can then clog the pond and choke the fish, said Glen Wear, BYU pest control foreman.

Though the ducks have caused many problems, there are some people who have enjoyed them during the summer and are sad to see the ducks leave.

"People are the problem, not the ducks," said Leslie Nielson, a senior from Costa Mesa, Calif., majoring in corporate fitness. "The people bring the trash — the ducks keep it clean."

"The pond is pretty without the ducks, but the ducks make it more fun," said Susan Lassen, Nielson's sister, a visitor from California. "The ducks are good for the kids since there is no zoo close by," she said, as her son Jeffrey fed the ducks some bread.

Traffic accidents darken holiday fun

Three Utah men and a California man have died in Utah traffic accidents over the Labor Day holiday weekend, and a Layton toddler who survived a collision remained in critical condition Monday.

The Utah Highway Patrol said David L. Hacking, 22, of Vernal was driving a pickup truck on a dirt road near Vernal about 1 a.m. Sunday when he rounded a curve too quickly and lost control.

The vehicle rolled several times and Hacking, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown out, said UHP Sgt. Dennis Platt. He was dead on arrival at Ashley Valley Medical Center. A passenger, Ted Dexter, 19, suffered minor injuries.

Donnie Martinez, 29, of Randlett, Utah County, was killed when he was ejected from a car that rolled on a gravel road east of Myton about 9:45 p.m. Sunday. The driver, Gwen Martinez, 29, suffered minor injuries.

Harry L. Oveson, 54, Woods Cross, was driving south on Interstate 15 at the I-215 interchange in Davis County when his vehicle left the road. He overcorrected and the vehicle rolled three times, ejecting him, Oveson said.

Doni Gardiner, 44, of Sepulveda, Calif., was struck and killed Friday morning as she was walking in a crosswalk in front of Crossroads Mall in Lake City. Gardiner was struck by a truck that fled the scene, running a red light at 100 West.

Gardiner was taken to LDS Hospital where she died Saturday night of head and internal injuries.

Witnesses said the hit-and-run truck had New Mexico plates, numbered KE8056.

Meantime, Joshua Salinas, 2, Layton, was in critical condition at St. Benedict's Hospital in Ogden after a two-car crash on U.S. 89 Sunday afternoon.

The highway patrol said Salinas was in a vehicle driven by Rhonda Thompson, 20, Layton, when the car collided with another vehicle attempting to turn left onto the highway.

The driver of the second car, Hugo Schaap, 80, of Ogden, and Shelley Salinas, 25, a passenger in Thompson's vehicle, were in stable condition at St. Benedict's, said nursing supervisor Louise Jurek.

Thompson was treated at the hospital and released.

Labor Day weekend a period of protest, holiday parades and picnics for workers

Striking telephone workers bargained on Labor Day and striking pilots protested, but for other workers the informal end to summer was a day for parades and picnics, politicians and fireworks.

There were also non-labor annual traditions, like the mass walk across Michigan's 4 1/2-mile Mackinac Bridge and the Fred Coleman Memorial Shoot, a pigeon shoot at Hefins, Pa. that drew animal rights protesters.

And it was a day to hit the beach. Sunshine and temperatures near the 70s sent people streaming to recreational areas such as Massachusetts' Cape Cod, where police reported traffic tie-ups.

By midday, lifeguards on Southern California beaches said the crowds were still growing, attracted by a water temperature of 66 degrees and two- to three-foot-high waves.

The annual Greater Boston Labor Council breakfast drew striking Eastern Airlines and New England Telephone Co. workers.

Michigan Gov. James Blanchard and his bride, married Saturday, led about 60,000 people on the traditional Labor Day trek across the Mackinac Bridge, but this year's walk was marred by a few anti-abortion protesters. The walk proceeded from St. Ignace on the Upper Peninsula, across the Straits of Mackinac that connect Lakes Huron and Michigan, to Mackinac City on the Lower Peninsula.

About 400 animal rights activists marched, chanted and screamed at competitors in the 55th annual Fred Coleman Memorial Shoot in Pennsylvania. Birds were released one at a time from cages about 20 yards in front of competitors with shotguns. Organizers of the community fundraiser had 6,000 birds on hand.

Community members said the event is a place for family fellowship.

25th anniversary celebrated

11 faculty members honored

Universe Services

Eleven members of the BYU faculty received this year's Karl G. Maeser awards for excellence in research and teaching.

President Rex E. Lee presented the awards, which are given annually, on Aug. 28.

This year is the 25th anniversary of the Maeser awards.

William A. Wilson, professor of English received the Karl G. Maeser Distinguished Scholar Award and Thomas E. Lyon, professor of Spanish and Portuguese, received the Maeser Distinguished Teacher Award.

Because of receiving the award both will deliver Distinguished Scholar lectures in February.

An additional four awards were presented for research and creative arts, and five excellence in teaching awards were presented.

Professors are nominated for the research and creative arts awards by their peers.

Those receiving the award are presented with a plaque and $5,000 for additional research.

This year the research and creative arts awards were given to Earl H. Fry, professor of political science; L. Howard Quackenbush, professor of Spanish and Portuguese; Stanley L. Welsh, professor of botany and range science; and Earl M. Woolley, chairman of the chemistry department.

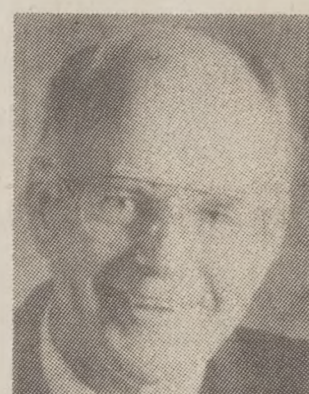

The research award is not presented specifically for any one piece of research a professor has completed. However, the award is usually associated with excellence in research in a specific area.

For example, Fry said he has been doing research into the following three areas: international trade and investment, U.S. foreign economic policy and the involvement of state and local governments in foreign trade and tourism.

Welsh said he believed he received the award in connection with the research leading to the publication of "A Utah Flora," a book which was published in March 1987.

Recipients of the Excellence in Teaching awards are also nominated by their peers.

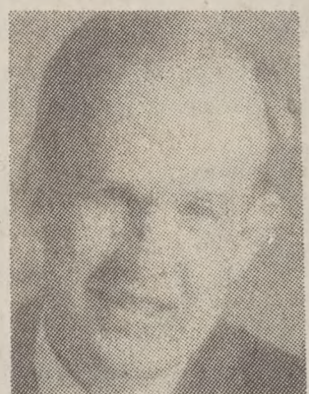

This year's recipients are Robert P.

Training required of supervisors, employees

By JEREMY J. JUDSON
Night Editor

According to the BYU Safety Office, any campus supervisor or employee who works with or around hazardous materials must receive related training to meet the Hazard Communication Standard.

The HAZCOM standard is a state safety law adopted in May 1988 by the Utah Occupational Health and Safety Administration to inform campus employees of the hazardous materials they may be working with or around.

OSHA, which heads the project, says that this standard will save 700 lives a year nationally, prevent 55,000 illnesses a year and reduce lost work-days by 500,000.

"It is essential for employees to know about the hazardous material in their workplace," said Jim Snyder, trainer/representative of the HAZCOM training program.

The self-training program consists of a written module, a videotape and a quiz (these are different for employees and supervisors) that must be passed to receive credit.

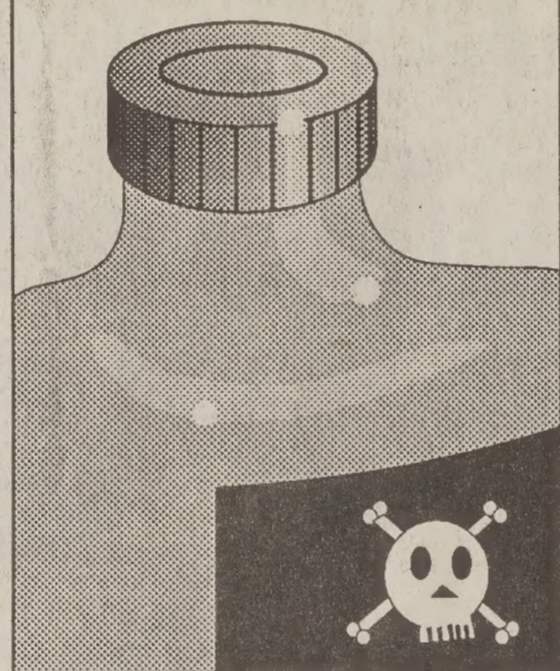

The written module provides explanations of common questions supervisors and employees ask about HAZCOM, while the videotape covers the five elements of the standard. The quiz is given after the video to measure understanding of the concepts presented.

The departments that fall under this standard are varied, ranging from Animal Science and Auto Shop to Water Treatment and the Wilkinson Center, so check with your supervisor to see if you require training.

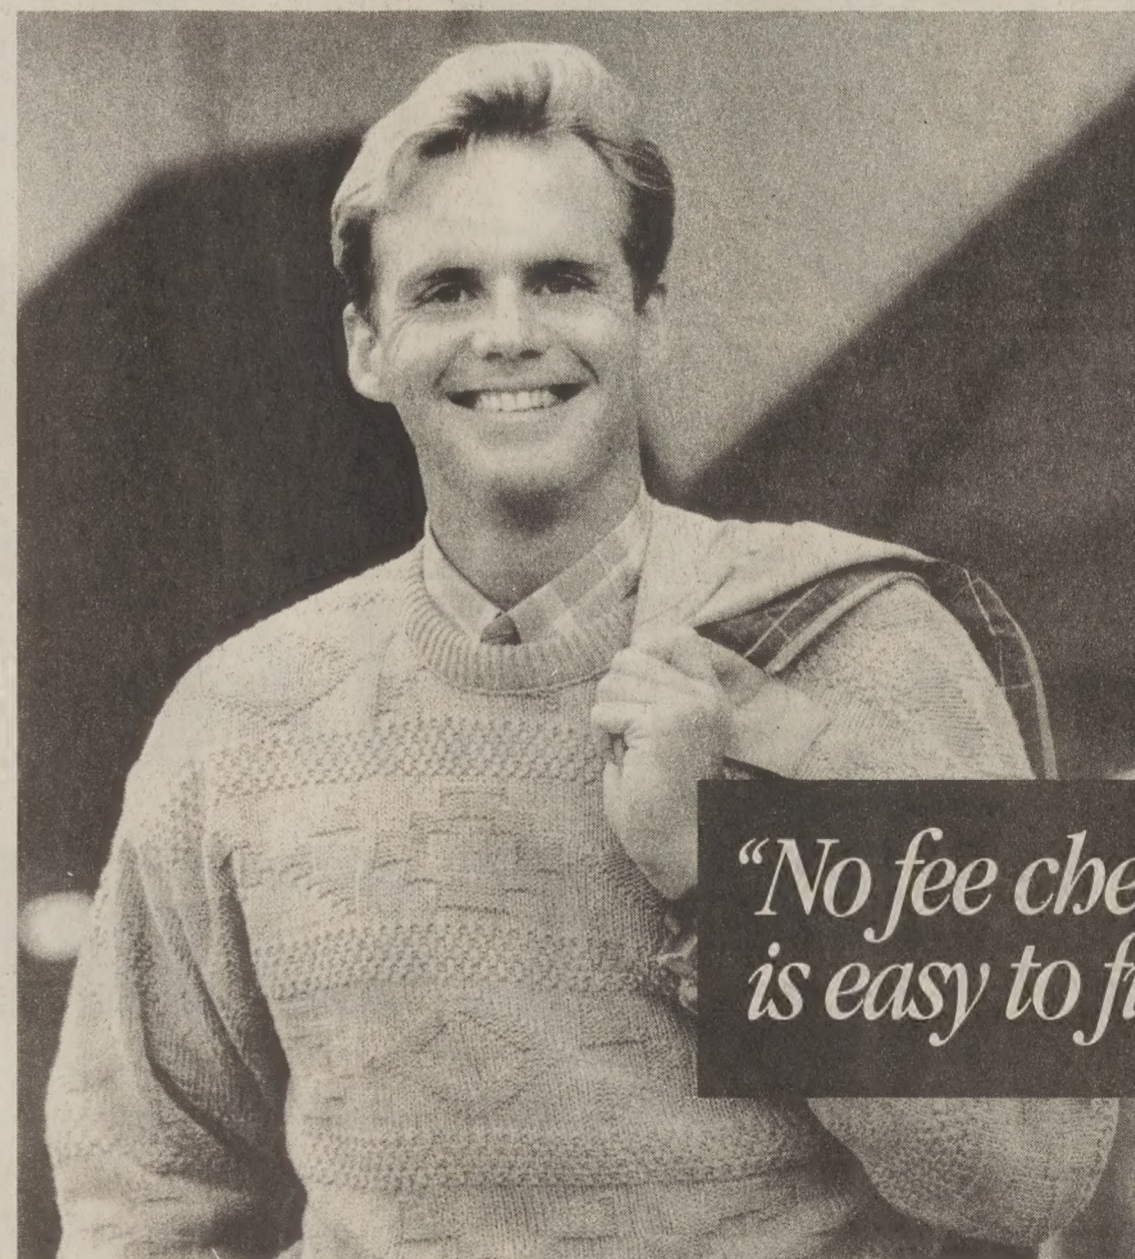

Anyone who needs the training and is in a department with 15 or fewer employees must contact the Learning Resource Center in the Harold B. Lee Library to make a reservation. The LRC can be reached at 378-4582; reservations need to be made a day in advance.

For departments with greater than 15 employees, the supervisor should contact the Safety Office at 378-6882 to schedule a time to give the general training to the department. Supervisors of departments with 15 employees or more are asked to schedule their training by Wednesday.

A broken sprinkler in the ELWC West Patio flooded part of the BYU Bookstore and the WC Cafeteria but only caused minimal damage to the buildings. The broken sprinkler and the ensuing flood caused the water pressure to drop, setting off the building's fire alarm on Monday about 7:00 p.m., said Scott Asbell, the building's night manager.

Pres. Lee responds to faculty's questions

By ALISA Y. KIM
Campus Editor

BYU President Rex E. Lee responded to 19 questions which ranged from topics of structural changes to his health condition. Beginning his address on a lighter side, President Lee said he appreciated former BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland except for his statement: Jogging ranks somewhere between cancer and leprosy.

"I must correct the one heresy that crept in during the Holland years," President Lee said.

"Little did he realize that while he has never had five minutes worth of experience with either running or cancer, his successor in office would be one of the world's leading experts on both of those subjects.

"For a time I actually considered going out and getting leprosy. But on reflection I decided I knew enough," he said.

A few of the questions President Lee answered were:

*How is the health condition of the president?

*How much time will President Lee spend defending cases before the Supreme Court and won't that divert time that ought to be spent on BYU matters?

*What are other big challenges in the future?

*Why does BYU need a provost?

*What other structural changes were made?

*Does the fact that organizational and personnel changes indicate any dissatisfaction with the previous administration, policies or direction of BYU?

In response to the concern of his physical health, President Lee said although his energy level and running speed has decreased, he has passed two weight stations for remission patients and has examinations every three months.

"I have a few semi-quirky defects that may or may not be attributable to chemotherapy and radiation," he said in reference to his lack of sense of smell and a continual dry mouth. "The good news is you're absolutely safe around me. The bad news is I have no idea whether I'm safe around you."

The two challenges he sees in the future are the increasing number of student applications and replacing faculty members that retire.

One of the two biggest challenges in the future will result from the growth of the membership of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, President Lee said.

Since an increasingly large proportion of new members will come from foreign countries, the number of student applications and quality of the student body will be affected. However, changes in the enrollment ceiling is unlikely.

"It will mean that the diversity, the talents and the total quality that our students will bring into our classes should provide exciting and interesting stimulation for all of us," President Lee said.

The second challenge, hiring qualified faculty members, stems from the retirement rate of faculty members. Within the next 10 years, 33 percent of BYU faculty will retire, assuming an average age of 65, President Lee said. Replacement of those retirees will be critical to the future of BYU.

"Those faculty slots are our single most precious possession," President Lee said. "Rather than fill any vacancy with someone who is not representative of the kind of university we want to have, I would rather shift some resources around or make some temporary arrangements, or if need be, even leave some classes untaught for a year."

President Lee said subject to approval by the Board of Trustees, he will use his leisure time in delivering on one to two cases a year before the Supreme Court. For the past four years, he has arranged with a team of Supreme Court specialists to have them write the briefs, which is more time consuming than presenting the speech.

"You have no way of knowing what a soft deal that is. It means that they do all the work while I get the public recognition and the professional satisfaction," President Lee said in a joking fashion.

President Lee and Sister Lee visited with guests at a reception for the BYU faculty.

During his address to the faculty, President Lee discussed topics such as structural changes, challenges faced by the university, and his health condition. He also talked about his U.S. Supreme Court cases.

Employee picnic to be Saturday

By PAT BIRKEDAH
Senior Reporter

The annual BYU family picnic for full-time employees and their families will be Saturday at Aspen Grove Family Camp.

The event requires advance registration, but there is no charge. Tickets can be picked up at the Alumni House today through Friday. The tickets can be exchanged at the picnic for ice cream and punch.

Families bring their own picnic lunch. Games and activities are provided. Among the games available will be tennis, racquetball, ping-pong, badminton, shuffleboard and horseshoes.

Activities include nature walks, a rope course and a hike up Mount Timpanogos. Those wishing to take the self-guided hike up Timpanogos will depart at 6:30 a.m., returning to Aspen Grove about 4 p.m.

Other activities begin at 10 a.m., when the store opens and equipment check-out begins. Lunch is scheduled for noon and the ropes course and rappelling open at 1 p.m.

Aspen Grove Family Camp, in an alpine setting, is owned and operated by the BYU Alumni Association. To get there, go up Provo Canyon and turn left at the Sundance Resort turn-off. Proceed past Sundance to Aspen Grove.

For more information, contact the Alumni House at 378-6739.

BYU employees receive awards

Gehring, Meibos receive 'highest honors' for service at BYU

Two university employees have been awarded the highest honor given to the staff and administration at BYU.

C. Randall Gehring, assistant copy center manager for Print Services, and Richard L. Meibos, Chemistry Department business manager and safety officer, were the recipients of the awards.

As the 1989 recipient of the Fred A. Schwendiman Performance Award, Gehring was hailed for conducting a difficult, highly visible job with the utmost professionalism. His clients call him the epitome of service and helpfulness, according to a press release.

A 1966 Orem High School graduate, Gehring completed a bachelor's degree in art at BYU this year — some of his works are on display in the University Mall. Gehring is an Eagle Scout and a car restoration buff.

Meibos was given the Ben E. Lewis Management Award for more than 30 years of service, during which he has helped build the Chemistry Central Stockroom into "what is probably the best operation of its kind in the country," said J. Bevan Ott, former Chemistry Department chairman and now associate academic vice president.

Meibos graduated in chemistry from BYU in 1952 and returned soon thereafter to full-time service. He expedites maintenance and remodeling of teaching and research laboratories.

The awards were presented by BYU President Rex E. Lee at the recent annual University Conference.

Uncle Buck grows up; Candy finds hit movie

By RICK MOODY
Special to the Universe

John Hughes' "Uncle Buck" is a lot. It is the most likable and consistently entertaining film Hughes has made since "Pretty in Pink," and is possibly the best vehicle ever for former SCTV funnyman John Candy, who has starred in a string of bombs that failed to take advantage of his comedic gifts.

Here Candy plays fully to type the big fat slob who happens here to be a ne'er-do-well uncle — an irresponsible and unwanted family embarrassment who is summoned to take care of his brother's kids during a crisis that takes the parents out of town for a few days.

Buck's early a.m. arrival is facilitated by the 'Buckmobile,' a grotesquely dirty car that emits a steady fog of exhaust as well as a gun not noise upon stopping, which causes all bystanders to hit the dirt throughout the film. An old, but still effective gag.

The Abyss is no Aliens

By RICK MOODY
Special to the Universe

Close Encounters of the Seuba Kind. This title tells it all unfortunately.

"The Abyss" is the long-awaited and controversial (the film maker's obsessiveness nearly resulted in the death of some divers) new thriller from writer/director James Cameron.

Cameron emerged the man to watch after he turned the sequel "Aliens" into a variation on his intense monster hit "The Terminator."

Not that we minded you understand, for both films benefited from his tough-girl-pursued-by-a-relentless-deadly-force approach. However, Cameron has seemingly transferred the characters from "Aliens" underwater to confront another deadly foe — or is it?

Cameron's requisite group of tough military stereotypes (butch ethnic girl, whining male soldier and etc.) are led by 'cast iron wench' Lindsey Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio and her tough, estranged husband Bud (Ed Harris) on a rescue mission to an undersea site.

They are investigating an unexplained submarine accident, and encounter the mysterious phenomena that caused the first tragedy.

After a hurricane hits and their undersea station is sent over the edge of a cliff into a deep abyss, various members of the crew encounter the 'angels' (tinkerbellish pixies of light) which cause much upset until Lindsey manages — after dealing with the standard 'you're seeing things' routine — to convince all that they are loving creatures.

The problem then with the film is this alien 'phenomena.'

For while in one respect "The Abyss" is the mawkishly positive flip side of "Aliens," it is being mistakenly advertised like "Aliens," implying that the audience should prepare itself to meet some deadly alien monster.

This is simply not the case. The aliens are a small, and largely unappreciated part of the proceedings.

The fun begins in earnest, however, when Buck meets his brother's brood: the beautiful but cold-hearted Thea, and her adorable precocious (i.e. dirty-mouthed) little brother and sister Miles and Maizee. What ensues is the somewhat heavy-handed, but likable tale of the civilization of Buck and Thea through having to deal with each other. (i.e. Buck learns to be housebroken and Thea overcomes her understandable embarrassment over his antics to realize how much he loves her in trying to steer her clear of a campus wolf who wants only one thing.)

Though the screenplay allows Buck many opportunities to grandstand for the kids' welfare vs. teachers, an alcoholic clown and such, it punches along nicely due to Hughes bits of witty banter as well as his customarily deft usage of pop music beat and editing to establish moods. (A montage of the kids and dog sleeping with Buck to "Mr. Sandman" is especially charming.)

Too there's a stand-out bit by Laurie

Uncle Buck (John Candy) has a man-to-man talk with his nephew Miles (Macaulay Culkin). Buck is called upon to take care of his brother's kids during a crisis.

Metcalfe ("Roseanne's" sister) as Marcie, the uptight and sex-starved neighbor who is after Buck big time.

Though "Uncle Buck" finds writer-director Hughes perhaps taking a step back after attempts at slick arty satire ("She's Having A Baby") and overdone sadistic comedy ("Trains, Planes, and Automobiles"), even in its gross leading character and heavy-handed approach it is much funnier and moving than either of the former films.

Todd Graff (left), Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio and Ed Harris are among a team of civilian divers pressed into reluctant service by the U.S. Navy on a seemingly routine rescue mission.

On the plus end however, this is a film set in the murky claustrophobic deep and is full of enough drownings and near drownings to chill anyone who has had such encounters with water — specifically deep sea diving.

One particularly harrowing scene suggests Lindsey allows herself to drown to save the others, as her husband watches helplessly.

Cameron proves particularly expert in balancing such moments of horror with others of witty banter and touching poignance, usually involving co-protagonists Bud and Lindsey, whose love is being reformed through the strain of the situation.

Ed Harris, a likable actor who has proven himself a formidable talent when given an opportunity (superb as John Glenn in "The Right Stuff") is fine here.

But, it is Mastrantonio who emerges a passionate and capable actress in a plumb role, proving she has more to offer than just her cleavage, a characteristic which dominated her appearance as the girl between Cruise and Newman in "The Color of Money."

In the final assessment, "The Abyss" is an involving al-be-it uneven thriller which offers evidence that the dynamic Cameron should avoid further excursion into lighter Spielbergian territory and return to his darker brand of gut-crunching horror we've all come to know and love.

Sept. 5 is a historic day

Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 5, the 248th day of 1989. One-hundred and seventeen days are left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Fifty years ago today, the United States proclaimed its neutrality in World War II.

On this date...

In 1698, Russia's Peter the Great imposed tax on beards.

In 1774, the Continental Congress assembled in Philadelphia.

In 1882, the nation's first Labor Day parade was held in New York.

In 1905, the Treaty of Portsmouth ending the Russo-Japanese War was signed in New Hampshire. President Theodore Roosevelt mediated the settlement.

In 1914, the First Battle of the Marne began during World War I.

In 1936, Sam Houston was elected president of the Republic of Texas.

In 1945, Iva Toguri D'Aquino — a Japanese-American suspected of being radio broadcaster "Tokyo Rose" — was arrested in Yokohama. She served six years for treason, but was pardoned in 1977 by President Gerald Ford.

In 1958, "Doctor Zhivago," a novel by Russian author Boris Pasternak, was published in the United States for the first time.

In 1972, 11 Israeli athletes and five Arab guerrillas who had taken them hostage were killed in a shootout with West German police during the Summer Olympics in Munich.

In 1975, President Gerald Ford escaped an attempt on his life when Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, a disciple of Charles Manson, attempted to shoot the chief executive in Sacramento, Calif.

In 1977, West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer was kidnapped and murdered by members of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

In 1977, seemingly in reverse order, the U.S. launched the Voyager I spacecraft two weeks after launching its twin, Voyager II.

In 1978, President Jimmy Carter welcomed Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Camp David, Md., for a summit that would result in the Camp David Middle East peace accords.

In 1986, 21 people were killed and dozens wounded after four hijackers who had seized a Pan Am jumbo jet in Karachi, Pakistan, began opening fire when the lights inside the plane failed.

Today's birthdays: Comedian-actor Bob Newhart is 60. Actress Raquel Welch is 49. "Cathy" cartoonist Cathy Guisewite is 39.

Bat mania hits

By MOLLY R. LARSON
Lifestyle Editor

Bat mania continues as stores continue to sell bat paraphernalia.

Jack Nicholson's potential $60 million payday for the movie "Batman", a percentage of the receipts and merchandising rather than a per-film deal, is getting attention from other movie stars.

Other movie makers are hoping to cash in on the comic-book-character-coming-to-the-big-screen success with a Dick Tracy movie and a Captain America movie.

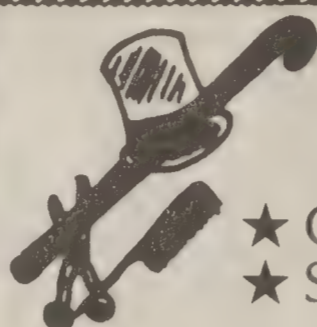

Many blockbuster movies get so much hype that most people are sick of hearing about them by the time the home video is released. This is not the case with Warner Bros.' "Batman."

Months before the movie opened people were pondering the wisdom of casting Michael Keaton as the Caped Crusader, and knowing already that Nicholson would be brilliant as the Joker.

"Video Review" magazine said Warner Bros., "so protective of its modest project, took out full-page ads in several trade papers hoping to scare off would-be pirates — all before the movie opened."

So if you haven't given in to bat mania yet, get it over with. We will be hearing about it for quite a while.

Back to basics for fall fashions

MOLLY R. LARSON
Style Editor

The fashion-conscious may be surprised to know that the theme for fall fashions is "back to the basics."

Two Glamour Magazine merchandising editors conducted a fashion show called "The Shape of Fall" at the University Mall August 28.

Craddock and Yberg modeled some "must haves" and robe builders to get the best look for fall.

Craddock and Yberg said a casual, comfortable look is the statement for fall. Corduroy, tweed and menswear-inspired vests provide a comfortable look and a nonconstricting shape.

Bulky sweaters with bright patterns, and dresses and skirts with a country look will also give a casual look.

Ankle boots and low-heeled shoes make the casual look truly comfortable. A touch of fringe adds some interest and makes a gentle silhouette, as opposed to tight, restricting fashions from seasons gone by.

Craddock and Yberg said some "must haves" for fall are pants with narrow legs, a jacket with a classic look, a pleated skirt and anything red.

The editors termed red as the new neutral that can brighten and update a wardrobe.

The editors also said accessories are also a good way to update a wardrobe.

For shoppers on a tight budget, accessories can breathe new life into your old clothes. Find scarves with colors to match your current wardrobe and mix and match them.

For evening wear, a tailored look with a tuxedo influence is the new style. Add a touch of gold, silver or pearls to accent the look.

Fur is making a comeback, the editors said, but fake fur is a must. Fur accents on coats and sweaters are becoming popular again.

Makeup is changing also. Women are no longer using makeup to contour or accentuate, but just to enhance slightly and give a soft appearance.

Cheek and lip color should be kept the same, and lips should always have some color to them.

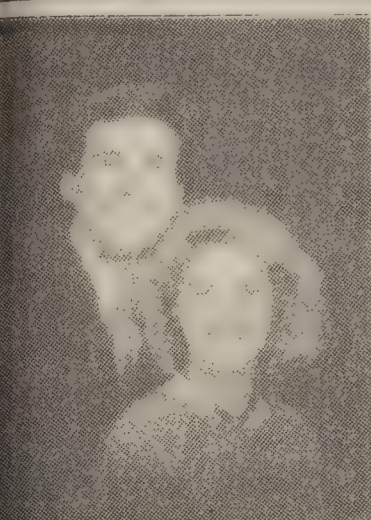

Eye makeup can depend on eye color, said the editors. Plum shades enhance brown eyes, rust shades enhance blue eyes and apricot shades enhance hazel eyes.

The editors said dark suits with a classic look are the fashion for working women. The suits should be accented with a bright-colored blouse, vest or scarf.

Menswear had a major influence on women's fashions this year, Craddock and Yberg said the tuxedo look and women's vests are the result.

Center Street is the place for hanging out, trouble

By REBECCA PIXTON
Universe Staff Writer

By day, Center Street in Provo may seem like an ordinary road. It has a variety of stores to shop in, as well as restaurants that cater to all tastes. It even has a park or two, complete with playground equipment.

But, drive down Center Street on a Friday or Saturday night and it is a completely different world.

The street is lined on both sides with people. They sit on the hoods of cars, in the back of pick-up trucks and on the sidewalks.

The attire consists of ripped Levi's and T-shirts for the guys, and the same for many of the girls, with an occasional mini-skirt and leather jacket thrown in. And, teased hair is a must.

They don't do anything in particular, just stand and talk. Why? Well, the reasons are as diverse as the people themselves.

For several years Center Street has been "the place" for high school students and other interested people to gather and simply "hang out" on the weekends.

George Pierpont, captain over patrol with the Provo Police Department, said Center Street has been the source of numerous problems for the community and the police.

"Frequent problems which the police encounter on Center Street include public intoxication, illegal possession and liveness," he said.

Pierpont said Center Street is a traditional hangout that people have frequented over the years.

Julie Ann Bates, a secretary in the records division at the Provo Police Department, said other problems which police often face include resisting arrest and assault, usually stemming from fist fights.

"We are very short handed on officers to help control the situation," she said.

Despite the ongoing problems which the Provo police face in regulating Center Street, fewer problems have erupted this year than in years past, Pierpont said.

"I'm not sure why we didn't have the problems this year that we have had in the past. Maybe they have found someplace else to hang out," he said.

Police have tried several approaches to regulate and control the problem of Center Street.

Bates said on occasion they have set up barricades to close the street in late hours of the night and early morning hours.

Pierpont also said officers are periodically placed on roof tops to watch for unlawful violations.

Ben Porter, Provo city councilman, said Center Street has always been a problem. He said the City Council has passed laws to try to help control the influx of people loitering on the street. He said curfew laws are one example of this attempt.

Kelly, a frequenter of Center Street on the weekends, said he and his friends don't go to Center Street to get in trouble. "We come here to sit around," he said.

"There is a lot going on down here, and I like to be where the action is," said Chris, a high school senior from Lehi.

Jerry, a 16-year-old from Orem, said he comes to Center Street because he has nowhere else to go on the weekend.

Phil said he comes to "pick up on the women."

Kelly said most of the time he comes to Center Street to watch other people. "We never really do anything, we just sit around and watch people make fools of themselves," he said.

Stan Brown, Provo city councilman said this type of hangout is found in every city.

"The kids have no place to go. They are looking for action and they find it on Center Street," he said.

Kevin Morris, a sophomore attending UVCC from Lehi, frequented Center Street often when he was going to high school. He said that cruising down Center Street was just "the thing" everybody did.

"It was fun to get together and watch people. Sometimes there would be drag races," he said.

Morris said that Center Street in Provo along with State Street in Salt Lake City have long been known as the two main places for "hanging out."

Palace offers dance alternative

Slappin' leather, cowboy boogie alive and well

By C.Q. PETERSEN
Senior Reporter

It happens every Thursday night just three hundred yards from the yuppie college student's condo row. People gather from Lehi, American Fork, Spanish Fork and other surrounding towns to do the "slappin' leather" and "cowboy boogie."

Country night at the Palace in Provo has been in existence for the past eight years, said Brian Murdock, general manager of the Palace. He also said country dancing is probably on its way back to popularity. But for the people attending country night, country dancing is more than just a fad, it's a way of life.

About 10:30 on Thursday night the Palace parking lot is full. Small factions of people can be seen standing by various trucks with music blaring from the stereos.

Inside, the dance floor is semi-filled with sets of couples doing their own interpretations of the two-step and the country swing. The seats surrounding one side of the dance floor are occupied by all types of people with one thing in common — their western apparel.

The patrons are wearing tight fitting Wrangler cowboy-cut jeans with large, oblong belt buckles. The shirts vary from a plaid long-sleeve to a traditional pull-over polo. Cowboy boots are in abundance but cowboy hats are scarce.

This night isn't exclusively for the younger generation. Older couples are not a rare sight at country night.

Country dancing has always been popular in Utah, said Henry Hilton, president of KSOP radio station. Country dancing is much different than "California dancing," he said.

"California dancing," Hilton said, is the type of dancing that only a few know. They see it on a video and come to the dance halls doing it. Country dancing has been around for quite some time and the basic steps never change, he said.

Heather Miller, 22, from Atlanta, Ga., said she goes country dancing because it is fun. She also said the guys are more "traditional acting" because they ask the girls to dance. Miller said she comes to the Palace to dance because there is more space to move.

Most of the people who attend country night are residents and not college students, said Murdock. About 20 percent of the people at country night are college students.

An Eddie Rabbit song bellows from the speakers and the dance floor suddenly fills. The patrons jam together on the dance floor and, as a group, they go from one side of the floor to the other two-stepping and skipping in time to the music. The experienced ones add some turns and exaggerated two-steps to the dance.

In front and to the side of the upper level is where most dance. There is a dance floor in the back where most go to practice some new moves before they bring it on the dance floor.

Most of the time, everyone dances with a partner. Most of the couples on the floor know the two-step and the country swing, but add some of their own moves to make their dances different from the rest.

Some couples begin dancing holding both hands and facing each other. By the time the song is over, the couple has wrapped, twisted and spun each other without breaking the grip of at least one hand.

SPORTS

Anticipated pigskin season opens for Cougars, nation

By S.S. BINGHAM
Sports Columnist

cheer and shout. The Cougars are

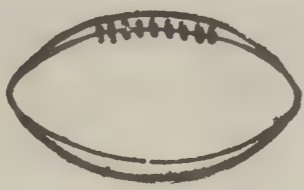

As it's time to dig in to your closets and pull out the long, racoon-fur coats and wooden-sticked pennants for the beloved sport in the state of Utah—and across the nation for that matter—is ready to return to Provo. The sport is more anticipated, folded, attended, and talked about in college football.

Forget about the pros. College football fans don't have to worry about their team packing up and moving away—a la Oakland to Los Angeles, Baltimore to Indianapolis, or St. Louis to Phoenix.

It's the bond between the fans and the teams is tighter than Winnie the Pooh's face in a jar of honey.

What do fanatics have to look forward to this season? Well, let's try to helmets on for size.

In Provo, Ty Detmer could be a throwback to the BYU quarterbacks of old after getting the starting nod from Sean Covey. If Detmer and his teammates perform as they should, another National Championship may not be out of reach.

Lou Holtz. Standing in the Cougars way is of course the defending National Champions. The Notre Dame Fighting Irish were 12-0 in what was supposed to be a rebuilding season last year.

Returning quarterback Tony Rice should have a big year. It's a good thing the Cougars won't see them until 1992.

Scott Mitchell. The perfect prospect. At 6-6, 230 Mitchell was the nation's total offense and passing yardage leader for the University of Utah and should contend for the Heisman Trophy as only a junior.

Earle Bruce. Yes, the same head coach who took over at Ohio State for the infamous Woody Hayes comes to the Western Athletic Conference to lead the Rams from Colorado State. Bruce, just after taking over the Rams, said, "Boy, I'd like to have the Ohio State team that kicked the crap out of BYU (in the 1982 Holiday Bowl, 47-17)." He won't.

Dee Dowis. Keeping in the WAC, Dowis runs the wishbone to near perfection. Although the Cougars have won 10 of 11 and six straight, the Falcons can be very strong with even an average defense.

Dan McGwire. The brother of Oakland A's first baseman Mark. This 6-8, 230 pound monster-transfer from the University of Iowa can easily see over the line and could bring the Aztecs back to the top of the WAC.

With Detmer, Mitchell, Dowis and McGwire, the WAC has a bevy of strong quarterbacks, any of whom could lead their teams the top of the WAC. However, the defending champion Wyoming Cowboys look to continue their tough power game. Hawaii will play 10 of 12 games at home this season, and the surprising UTEP Miners hope to return from 10-3 season.

Prediction: 1. BYU, of course; 2. Hawaii; 3. Utah; 4. Wyoming; 5. SDSU; 6. Air Force; 7. Colorado State; 8. Uteq; 9. New Mexico.

Cougars open season 1-0

Detmer, Mitchell place BYU on track after a lackluster first half display

By BRADY BINGHAM
Sports Editor

The BYU Cougar football team used their size, speed and experience to outlast the enthusiastic New Mexico Lobos Saturday in Albuquerque, 24-3.

For a BYU offense that was supposed to light up the scoreboard—favored by as much as 29 points—the Cougars and quarterback Ty Detmer had trouble even sparking a match in the first half. The Cougars gained just 127 yards of total offense and Detmer was just 8-17 passing in the first half.

Detmer said, "I feel bad about my performance. BYU should score more than 24 points and not get shut out in the first half. ... We were just pressing too much."

However, the defense and corner back Brian Mitchell provided the spark the Cougars needed to get on track and win their first opener in two years.

The Cougar defense held the Lobos to a mere 7 yards of total offense in the second half and to only a 35 yard field goal by freshman kicker David Margolis on the Lobos opening drive of the game.

Cougar linebacker Bob Davis said, "We just got fired up (in the second half). It took some time for us to feel them out. ... We started blitzing like crazy in the second half and when we didn't blitz, our defensive line did a great job."

The Cougars opened the second half quickly as they drove 62 yards in 9 plays for their first score as Detmer ran four yards on a bootleg around right end for the touchdown and the Cougars led for the first time 7-3.

Following several possession changes, Detmer fumbled at the BYU 17 yard line and New Mexico looked to regain the lead late in the third quarter in front of 27,045 fans.

However, on perhaps the biggest play of the game, Mitchell picked off a Lobo pass intended for wide receiver Terance Mathis at the three yard line and returned it 97 yards for a Cougar touchdown on the last play of the third quarter.

"I think the interception was the turning point, it was a great play," said BYU head coach LaVell Edwards.

Mitchell said, "I saw Mathis come off the line and go back. I just sat back and anticipated. (After intercepting the pass)... Bergeson threw a great block on number 83 (Jay Schultz). I knew I was going all the way when I got past him."

Mitchell's 97-yard return for the touchdown is a BYU school record breaking the old mark of 93 yards by Dan Hansen in 1971 against Wyoming.

Three minutes into the fourth quarter BYU drove 80 yards on 10 plays and scored on a 15 yard trounce by fullback Fred Whittingham putting the Cougars ahead 21-3. Kicker Jason Chaffetz then finished off the Lobos with a 22-yard field goal with 2:57 left for a 24-3 final.

For the Cougars, Detmer finished 18-29 passing for 317 yards, tight end Chris Smith caught five passes for 114 yards, and Whittingham rushed nine times for 41 yards.

Biegel led tacklers with 12 and linebacker Chad Robinson had 10 tackles and three sacks.

The win gave the Cougars an early lead in the Western Athletic Conference as all the teams saw action Saturday.

In the only other conference game the Air Force Academy ran over the Aztecs from San Diego State 52-36 in Colorado on the legs of quarterback Dee Dowis. Dowis ran for a school record six touchdowns and 249 yards on only 13 carries.

In Laramie, Wyo., the Wyoming Cowboys were upset by the Louisville Cardinals on a fourth quarter, 34-yard touchdown pass, 28-21.

Utah was hammered by Fresno State 52-22; Colorado State was beaten by Tennessee 17-14; UTEP lost to Tulsa 23-14; and Hawaii beat Tulane 31-26.

Spikers split matches; Lose to strong team

WICKI WILSON
Sports Editor

The 10th ranked BYU Women's Volleyball Team came up with a win then went home with a loss this weekend.

On Thursday the lady spikers beat the University of Utah in three straight sets, 15-7, 15-7, 15-8.

Marinda Gorbahn, junior from Columbia, and Stephanie Trane, senior from American Fork, recorded three service aces. Gorbahn also made 12 kills in the match, while Gorbahn came up with a block and three block assists.

BYU had a total of 45 kills to Bradley's 29 kills. On Friday the Cougars were swept by fifth ranked Long Beach State 4-15, 6-15, 5-15.

Trane made 16 kills while Long Beach's Tara Cross made 18 kills. Cross was the 1988 Player of the Year. Laura Warnoch, freshman from Salt Lake, had four block assists in the match.

BYU Coach Elaine Michaelis was not too disappointed with the loss. "Long Beach State is probably the best in the country. They have great timing. Their in mid-season form while we are in pre-season form. In the second game there was a consecutive 28 sideouts and the game was tied 4-4. I was surprised we could stand up with them."

Jazz receive loan for arena

Associated Press

Utah Jazz owner Larry Miller received a formal commitment Aug. 29 from a Dutch bank and First Security Bank of Utah for a $55.8 million loan to finance a new downtown arena for the NBA franchise.

Nederlandsche Middenstandbanke of the Netherlands will provide 90 percent of the loan, and First Security the other 10 percent under an agreement Miller called "the biggest step" in bringing the arena to fruition.

"Now some of the fun part starts because it's beginning to take on a personality of its own," said Miller. Under the agreement, Miller will put up the arena revenues as collateral, along with the Jazz franchise itself, excluding a fixed cash amount for future potential business operations.

Design of the new 18,500-seat facility is moving forward, he said. A groundbreaking ceremony should take place in about four weeks, and the arena is expected to be finished by Aug. 31, 1991.

The last preconstruction detail left to be worked out is the Salt Lake City Redevelopment Agency's completion of its purchase of the 10-acre site, located just west of the Salt Palace.

Miller originally hoped to build the arena for $45 million and is optimistic it will not exceed that amount.

"It now sends a message that we are an NBA city and all that that connotes," said Spence Eccles, chairman of the board of First Security Corp.

Pro-wrestlers fight drug abuse

By SCOTT NIENDORF
Universe Sports Writer

Pro-wrestlings' Max Payne enlisted the aid of several area wrestlers to promote his message against drug abuse to an enthusiastic crowd that included several youths from Provo Canyon School Wednesday evening in Pleasant Grove.

Spectators witnessed duels between The Annihilator and The All-American, Dash Riprock and The Deviant and Payne who faced T.K. Arrie in the Western Wrestling Alliance's gym in Pleasant Grove.

Payne said he organized the three-match event because he is concerned with the youth of the country. "The youth are the future of the country," he said. "They are important to me."

"I'm still a big kid at heart," Payne said. "I know the feelings the adolescents are going through. I've been through it all before."

Payne said he has wrestled extensively throughout the southern United States and Japan and in several parts of California. He attributed his one-time heavy use of drugs to the toll of injuries he incurred while wrestling daily on wrestling tours.

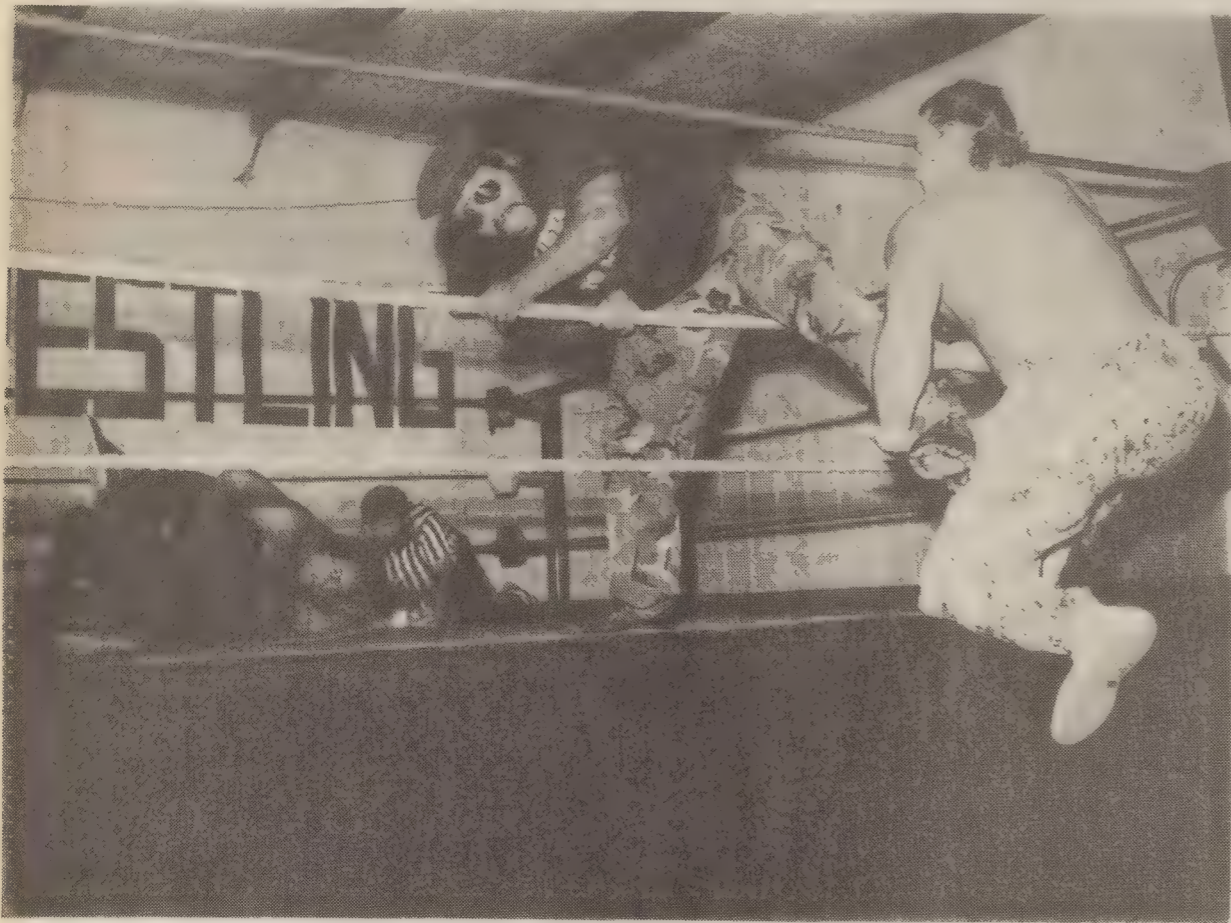

"That monkey will always be on my back," Payne said. "If I can, I want to get people to stop before they really get started."

"When you're as big a man as I am (6'6", 350 pounds) and you can talk intelligently about something, people are going to listen to you," he said. "As a professional athlete, in any sport, kids are going to look up to you."

Payne said he wanted to continue wrestling and would love to share his message with the masses. "I don't think the drug problem will be solved by the government," he said. "I think it will have to be solved by the people."

Speaking directly to the young people after the last match, Payne said, "There are some real pressures out there. You don't need to worry about the Russians. Obviously, the real problem out there is drugs."

"There's no dream too big that you can't achieve if you never surrender to drugs. Never surrender," he said.

Acupuncture is used to help cure racehorses

Associated Press

Editor's note — The ancient oriental medical treatment, acupuncture, is still something of a rarity among orthodox American doctors. But the practice is spreading in at least one specialty — veterinary medicine. The vets don't talk about it much, but their appearance at racetracks around the country has become commonplace.

BELMONT, N.Y. — Dr. Allen Schoen sticks some rather ordinary looking needles into the neck of a big 3-year-old chestnut filly. The thoroughbred, stabled at Belmont racetrack, had been laid up with what had been diagnosed as hock problems.

The hock is sort of a backward ankle on a horse's hind leg, a long way from the neck.

The treatment was acupuncture, a practice that has been proliferating in recent years among veterinarians.

The hock-hurt filly had been through a run of conventional veterinarians says Dr. Schoen, president of the International Veterinary Acupuncture Society. "Everything helped temporarily, but the problem kept coming back."

Now the filly is running at Belmont and the hocks are holding fine.

Most owners want it kept secret if their horses are treated by acupuncture, but its use has become wide spread on racetracks across the country, as well as in small-animal practices and on livestock.

"Eight years ago, you hardly ever saw a vet out here practicing acupuncture," says Billy Turner, an experienced trainer who guided Secretariat to the 1973 Triple Crown. "Now, they're all over the place."

Turner, himself, uses acupuncture on horses he trains, not only as a cure, but as a diagnostic tool as well.

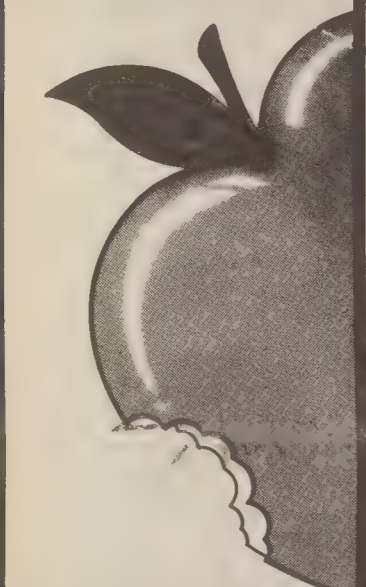

"They can't solve everything, but they solve a lot," Turner says. "They made a believer out of me."

But why won't they talk about it? "You know how to spell trainer?" asks another trainer, Phil Johnson.

"Note that it has an 'i' in it. It's never the horse, the jockey, the breeding."

"It's the 'i' in the trainer that got that horse into the winner's circle. Why would they tell you something like acupuncture helped?"

Dr. Marvin Cain of Cincinnati said, "Acupuncture hasn't replaced anything we've already learned. It just added another important piece of the professional pie."

Giamatti's funeral

Family requests private burial

NEW YORK (AP)—A. Bartlett Giamatti's body was taken to a Hamden, Conn., funeral home late Saturday and baseball announced Sunday that the funeral and burial will be closed to the public.

"At the request of the family, funeral services for Dr. Giamatti will be private and limited to the family," acting commissioner Fay Vincent said in a statement. "The family hopes that his many friends and admirers will respect its wishes for privacy during this difficult time. A memorial service for Dr. Giamatti will be held at some point in the future, but plans are not yet complete."

The memorial probably will be held at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., according to school and baseball officials. They said the date of the memorial was still being discussed. Giamatti, who died at the age of 51 from a heart attack last Friday, was president of Yale from 1978 to 1986.

It was a quiet Sunday at Beecher & Bennett Inc. The funeral home, a one-story, red brick building, is set back by a grass lawn off a four-lane road that runs through Hamden, the town where Giamatti lived. At mid-afternoon there were no visitors. The parking lot was empty except for a lone, black hearse.

Frank Taylor, who identified himself as an administrator, was inside answering telephones. He refused to give any details of the plans for Giamatti's funeral or burial.

Giamatti continued to be remembered at the nation's ballparks on Sunday. Moments of silence are being observed before all games through Monday and flags will be lowered to half staff until further notice.

Vincent, the deputy commissioner, on Saturday was named acting commissioner by baseball's executive council, which consists of the two league presidents and seven owners.

The executive council, which met by conference call Saturday, has a regularly scheduled meeting on Friday in New York. A baseball official, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified, said he expected the executive council would recommend that Vincent be made commissioner pro tem. Under the Major League Agreement, a commissioner pro tem may serve up to three years. There is no formal office of acting commissioner under the Major League Agreement.

A quarterly meeting of major league owners is scheduled for Milwaukee on Sept. 13-14 and they could ratify the selection at that time, the official said. The owners also could meet earlier by conference call to ratify the choice.

Giamatti began his five-year term as commissioner April 1, succeeding Peter Ueberroth. Vincent, former chairman of Columbia Pictures Industries Inc., took office with Giamatti.

Volleyball starts year with NCAA sanction

By VICKI WILSON
Asst. Sports Editor

After dominating the National Collegiate Club Championships for four years, the BYU Men's Volleyball team has been given an NCAA sanction by the University.

Along with the talent of the players, the sanction was also awarded based on their high attendance and growing popularity of the sport itself.

BYU will enter the Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Association (WIVA) which includes the top ranked teams of: UCLA, Pepperdine, Santa Barbara, UC Irvine and Northridge.

WIVA teams have won every national championship since 1971. Regular season play opens against number one ranked Pepperdine.

The Pepperdine "Waves" are coached by Mary Dunphy who took the U.S. Men's Volleyball Team in 1988 to the Gold Medal victory of the Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea. He also received his Doctorate degree here at BYU in 1979.

Coaching the Cougars this year will be Carl McGown.

McGown is a professor in the Physical Education Department where he teaches Development of Motor Learning. He was instrumental in leading the U.S. Men's Volleyball Team to Olympic Gold Medal victories in 1984 and 1988.

McGown is recognized by many as the best technical coach in the world. He will be assisted this year by Rich Cortez and Sam Atoa. He is a former BYU player who was invited to try out for the Student World Games played in Yugoslavia.

Over the years, 10 players and five coaches from BYU have been selected to the U.S. Olympic Teams.

BYU will host all of the top ranked teams this winter in the Smith Field House. Some of these teams are: UCLA, Pepperdine, Stanford, Hawaii, Penn St. and USC. A finalized schedule and season tickets will be available at a later time.

The Cougars will have some strong recruits from Canada, California, Hawaii and Europe. Tryouts for the team will begin on Sept. 11 at 3 p.m. in 144 RB.

Lacrosse to begin season at the University of Calgary

By VICKI WILSON
Asst. Sports Editor

Coming off a Spring season with a 14-3 record, the BYU Men's Lacrosse Team will travel to the University of Calgary to participate in a tournament Sept. 15-16.

The team will also play in the Air Force Fall Classic in Colorado Springs Oct. 6-7. BYU finished third in the prestigious Fall Classic last season, their best finish ever.

A home game is being scheduled during Homecoming Week against rival University of Utah. The highlight of last year was the victory against Utah in the season finale. Having come out on the short side of a 12-11 battle against Utah in the first meeting, pride was on the line. The Cougars defeated the Utes 20-5, the second time around. It was the first time BYU Lacrosse has beaten Utah in 15 years of play.

Last season the Cougars came home with their first tournament championship with a win at the University of New Mexico Shootout. Other victories included USC, Texas Tech, Utah State and Arizona State.

Coach Greg Saunders returns for his fifth season with BYU. He has compiled a 50-8 record, one of the best in lacrosse today.

Saunders says this years team will be equally great in offense and defense. "This years team looks to be the strongest defensive team we've ever had. The offense will also be excellent, especially with the high scoring attack."

BYU's leading scorer Klane Murphy, senior, will be back at his position as attackman. Murphy averaged 4.1 goals per game last season. Team captain Todd Jones, senior, will take his average of 1.6 goals per game to the midfielder position.

Two returning defenders to keep your eye on are Dave Garff and Scott Rogers, both sophomores. The Cougars will have two returned missionaries on the field. Jason Lamb, sophomore, served in Rome, Italy and will fit in the goalie/midfield positions. Bill Freedman, sophomore, served in Uruguay and is looking to help in the attackman position.

Tryouts begin at 4 p.m. on Friday at the Helaman Lacrosse Field. There is a mandatory meeting for all players on Wednesday in 180 TNRB at 6 p.m.

Aerobatic stunt jets collide

Associated Press

TORONTO - Two jets from the Snowbirds aerobatic team crashed into Lake Ontario during an air show Sunday after apparently striking each other, authorities said. One pilot was feared dead and the other ejected and was taken to the hospital.

The pilot who managed to eject from his stricken craft was identified as Maj. Dan Dempsey of Edmonton, commander of the Canadian Forces precision flying team.

A spokesman at Toronto General Hospital said Dempsey, 36, suffered facial cuts and leg burns.

Witnesses along the Toronto waterfront reported Dempsey's parachute opened just before there was a loud explosion and one plane plunged into the lake within a few hundred yards of the shore under clear skies.

The missing pilot was not identified, pending notification of relatives.

Owen James of Toronto, one of thousands of horrified onlookers, said, "The one aircraft just literally disappeared into a complete ball of flame and black smoke. They were flying a fairly close formation, operating away from the main team."

Commissioner Giamatti dies; Football season underway

The entire sports world was stunned at the sudden death of baseball commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti who died of a heart attack Friday afternoon at his summer home on Martha's Vineyard. Giamatti, 51, had been commissioner for five months.

A leading candidate for the position of deputy commissioner Fay Vincent was named acting commissioner of the executive committee on Saturday. Whoever is nominated for the position must receive a vote of approval by at least three-fourths of the members. With the Collective Bargaining Agreement with the players' association expiring after this season, a strike looms as a possibility for 1990.

Get ready Cougar fans, BYU football's home opener is Thursday night against PAC-10 member Washington State University. The game will be televised nationally on ESPN at the opening kickoff scheduled for 8 p.m.

WSU, like BYU, had trouble getting its offense in gear during the first half of its season opener against powerful 1-AA Idaho. But the defense held Idaho scoreless in the first quarter and only allowed one touchdown in the game while the offense eventually picked up 41 points.

An impressive win by the Cougars would definitely give BYU added momentum in the rankings and confidence in itself. The team showed its character in maintaining its poise after being shut-out in the first half and coming back to score 24 unanswered points.

- Take note BYU, everybody's gunning for you.
- Sixth-ranked Florida State was upset by unheralded Southern Miss Saturday 30-26. The Golden Eagles of SMU ended the Seminole's 11-game winning streak and have served notice they deserve a spot in the rankings.
- Also, seventh-ranked LSU lost to Texas A&M 28-16.
- Air Force dumped San Diego State with its wishbone offense 52-36 in each team's opener in Colorado Springs. Hawaii was the only other WAC team to win its home opener by defeating Tulane 31-26. Hawaii will play 10 of 12 games at home this year.

time they deserve a spot in the rankings.

• The NFL ended its pre-season last weekend with the Indianapolis Colts as the only undefeated team going 4-0. The real season starts this weekend and every team will receive a clean slate. The NFL rules committee will not, however, unless it rescinds its rule of penalizing crowds for excessive noise. New Orleans, Indianapolis and Seattle all lost their time outs when their fans could not, would not settle down.

• Sports Book of the year: reading not gambling. "The Summer of '49" by David Halberstam. A very inciteful piece on the race for the pennant between bitter rivals the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees.

• Quote of the week—"You won't believe this but, yes, we were ready for him." San Diego State coach Al Luginbill after Air Force quarterback Dee Dowis rolled over the Aztecs for 249 yards on 13 carries and scored a WAC-record six touchdowns.

Passing the University entrance exam.

University Avenue, that is.

During the reconstruction, it may be difficult to get every place you want. However, you can get to the shops and stores on University Avenue by taking detours and using back entrances.

And you can still get to your classes at BYU, even though it may mean—horror of horrors—getting up a little earlier to beat the crowds.

The best roads to use for getting up to campus include University Parkway, North Canyon Road, 900 East, 700 East and University Avenue up to 800 North.

The road will be finished near the end of September. Then traffic will be back to normal, and you'll be able to get a few more minutes of sleep. Until then, plan ahead. Use the detours, set your alarm early.

Explore Provo during the University Avenue reconstruction.

Rifleman fires on airport passengers at Colombian drug trafficking center

Associated Press
BOGOTA, Colombia — A man with an automatic rifle fired on airport passengers Monday in Medellin, a drug trafficking center, and police fired back. Officials said two people were killed, including the attacker, and 12 were wounded.

Shipments of $65 million in emergency military aid continued to arrive in the U.S. effort to help the anti-narcotics campaign that President Virgilio Barco's government began Aug. 12.

Civil aviation officials in Monteria, a northwestern city, said a C-123 transport plane of the State Department's international narcotics division was firebombed early Sunday.

The U.S. Embassy said Monday it didn't confirm the bombing but acknowledged the plane had been badly damaged by some kind of fire. An embassy spokesman said the C-123 was bound for the United States from Monteria two weeks ago when it had engine trouble and landed at Monteria.

Medellin, 215 miles north of Bogota, is home to the world's largest cocaine cartel and has been subjected to bombings and other violence by narcotics traffickers since the crackdown began.

A young man in army camouflage clothes drove up to the airport terminal at 7:15 a.m. Monday and opened fire on passengers being checked as they entered for a flight to Bogota. Police reported.

Col. Luis Camejo, commander of national police for Antioquia province, said the gunman "began to shoot indiscriminately with a G-3 rifle," an automatic weapon manufactured in Israel.

One passenger was killed before police shot the attacker to death, a national police spokeswoman in Medellin told The Associated Press by telephone.

She said nine other civilians and three police officers were wounded in the shootout on the sidewalk just outside the terminal.

Barco, a national radio chain, identified the dead passenger as a 27-year-old administrator for Pintuco, the country's largest paint company, which is based in Medellin.

The Pintuco factory was bombed Tuesday in an attack blamed on drug traffickers.

The identity of the attacker was not immediately known.

A business executive who escaped the attack said, "Everybody panicked and just threw themselves on the floor, including me." He said the attacker appeared to be between 18 and 25 years old.

Police said the gunman's car was fired away in case it contained a bomb, but a search found no explosives.

sives. Caracol said some marijuana was found in the vehicle.

Airport security was increased throughout Colombia. At El Dorado in Bogota, police and soldiers searched passengers and checked bags outside the terminal.

Barco's government ordered the crackdown on drug traffickers after a string of assassinations that culminated in the killing on Aug. 18 of Sen.

Luis Carlos Galan, the leading presidential candidate and an outspoken foe of the cocaine barons.

Using emergency powers, police and the army have seized more than 500 estates, office buildings and other property, including cars, aircraft, yachts, cattle and racehorses.

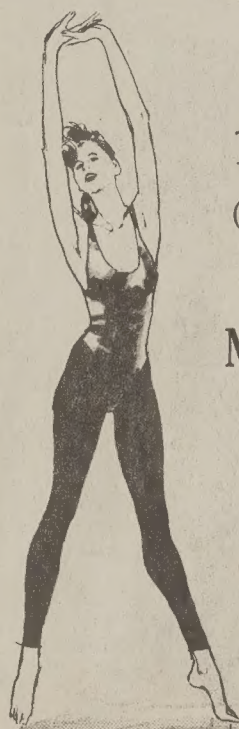

Some middle-level traffickers have been arrested, but the Medellin cartel leaders remain at large.
